When John Caleb King, 14, of Fall River Mills was a kid, he loved mands and follow explicit directions, to play with Legos.

"He was a Lego maniac," said his father, John King, who teaches a fourth and fifth grade combination class at Fall River Elementary School.

When John Caleb was nine, his parents took him to Legoland where, as King watched his son build and program a working minirobot using computer software and Lego pieces, he had a bright idea of his own.

"I asked them how I could get this because I wanted to bring it into my classroom," he said.

Called Lego Robolab, students use a combination of creativity, design, logic, and problem solving skills as they work in teams to build their own programmable robots.

"Most already have the context of building with Legos," King said, adding that there are 57 learning activities involved just in playing with blocks.

"With this, they learn the basics of computer programming.

"It's a project that allows students to direct their own learning and gives teachers the power to use technology in the classroom," King

He found Pitsco Lego Dacto, Lego's education division and the manufacturer of Robolab education software, and then he wrote a grant request to the Burney-Fall River Education Foundation.

The Foundation awarded the $1,244 grant in 1999, one of 19 requests funded that year.

Last year, the Foundation awarded a record $21,000 in grants for educational materials in the local schools.

Education Foundation allows us to write these grants and gives us more creative opportunities for learning that the district could not afford," King said.

The Robolab projects take several weeks to complete and King begins with a Web-based lesson "to create wonder and excitement.

"There's lots of classroom discussion to begin with and then we form Discovery teams.

"The students take a pre-quiz, to see what they already know and we do brainstorming.

Schaller, Wrigley and Lt. Tom Bosenko of the South County Station also reviewed the Community Service Surveys distributed to about 1,000 Shasta County residents. The plan will be presented to the Shasta County Board of Supervisors in July.

Some of the suggestions from the Burney meeting included:

* Reactivate Operation Identification with volunteer help and the Burney substation would provide a day when people can engrave valuables

* Contact churches to offer more programs for young people, such as the youth programs currently taking place at Word of Life

Instead of sending juveniles in trouble to Redding, find ways to help them within the community and make them accountable to the community

Publicize existing programs, such as the volunteer You Are Not Alone telephone contact service for the elderly

Enhance Neighborhood Watch programs; bring neighbors together with block parties and BBQs and discuss local problems

* Assign a deputy to attend chamber of commerce, Rotary, etc. meetings to stay in touch with community members and business owners

* Consider more lighting in community and in businesses at night

* Provide businesses and building owners with security tips

New practices in place to attract more deputies

BY MEG FOX

The Shasta County Sheriff's Office has started a new hiring procedure that should entice more deputies to the area to work.

In the past, before any newly hired deputies could work on the streets they had to first put in five years working in the Shasta County

It didn't matter if they were fresh out of the police academy or fresh from six years on patrol in Los Angeles.

Unless someone had the rare resident deputy post, they went straight to jail.

That aspect didn't appeal to a lot of people.

'The wages here are comparable and the benefits are comparable, but when we said you have to work in the jail, most said no thanks and went elsewhere," said Lt. Greg Wrigley of the Burney substation.

Also, Shasta County does not put pay academy tuition for interested applicants.

"The pool we hire from is fairly small," Wrigley said.

In January, the Sheriff's Department decided to start recruiting corrections officers to work in the county jail and put deputies to work in the community after they completed their 14-week field training. "We're confident our recruitment problem is going to dissolve in the next year," said Shasta County Undersheriff Larry Schaller.

This will be good since Schaller said there are six deputies retiring in July and several more leaving in December.

Thirty-five percent of department personnel are eligible for retire-

"We're looking to hire 24 to 25 people this year," Schaller said.

"We also have very employable people from businesses that have closed in the county who are looking for work in corrections," he continued.

And the Community Service Surveys did suggest

Of the 150 surveys distributed by Citizen Patrol volunteers in Burney, Cassel, Round Mountain and Montgomery Creek, 70 were returned.

In fact, Wrigley said, with the total return of 200 surveys countywide, almost half came from the area served by the Burney substation.

Most of those who responded locally were over age 55.

Sixty-four percent of the local respondents said Shasta County was a "very safe" place to live and 73 percent said Burney itself was a "very safe" place to live.

The scale ranged from Very Unsafe to Very Safe.

On a checklist of 21 possible crimes, local residents indicated that abandoned cars and junk, speeding cars, littering, vandalism, and illegal drug activity occurred the most often in their neighborhood.

According to the respondents there were few neighborhood incidents of crimes such as burglary, auto theft, domestic violence, graffiti, loud parties, sexual assault and rape.

To the question about the level of satisfaction people have with patrol and other police services, 22 respondents noted they were "very satisfied," 28 were "satisfied," and 20 were "unsatisfied."

Community members also strongly favored continuing Sheriff Office programs, particularly Neighborhood Citizen Patrol, Watch, Schools Resource Officer, DARE, and Abandoned Vehicle Enforcement.

They also strongly favored community and police partnerships.

Bob Hoodenpyle, a Burney businessman who attended the meeting, said there are concerns in the community about crime and vandalism.

"There's so much talk in the community. I'm upset to see so few people here," he said.

He mentioned recent vandalism to at least three downtown businesses and wanted to know why there had been so little mention of the crimes in the newspaper.

"People are not aware of how bad the problem is," he said.

He also wanted to know why, after a local burglary, the deputies had "rejected the idea of fingerprints."

Wrigley explained why fingerprints can't always be lifted, adding, "We probably don't do a good enough job of explaining why.'

Another resident asked what could be done about skateboarders playing on private property.

Wrigley, who is on the board of directors at the Intermountain Community Center, said there is an ongoing drive to raise money to build a youth skateboard park.

"The chamber and businesses should be throwing money all over that and get it built. That would solve the problem," he said.

Grandfather to Devon Reynolds. Born in McCloud, CA on December 20, 1925 to Arden and Elizabeth Reyonlds, Red was 76 years old. Red was raised in Fall River, CA and graduated from Fall River ligh School in 1943. He later joined the U.S. Navy where he served his country proudly during the end of World War II. After returning home from service he worked for PG&E in the Fall River/Burney area. He later joined his parents in Santa Rosa, CA and became a member of the Operating Engineers Local 3 in Santa Rosa of which he was a member for over 35 years. Red worked as a heavy equipment operator for Marshall Maxwell Sand and Gravel in Windsor, CA. Red was a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge for 50 years holding many office positions including District Grand Master. He was a member of the Moose Lodge and Red and Nettie were founding members of an RV group known as the Berryessa Bums. Red loved to travel and spend most of his retirement traveling the western United States with his beautiful wife Nettie. In his earlier years Red and his family enjoyed camping and water skiing. There were numerous friends and family that would join together at Lake Mendocino and camp and ski most every weekend from April through October. Once retired from skiing, he took up fishing where he bought a summer trailer at Clear Lake, CA. He ater sold the trailer and purchased several motor homes, each one getting a little bit bigger and a whole lot plusher. Traveling and visiting friends and family was what Red loved to do most. No matter where they traveled, Red and Nettie would establish new life long friends. Red was also gifted with his hands and enjoyed working with wood. He enjoyed helping his two sons work on projects around their homes. Red would never turn down a call for help no matter how busy he was or even if under the weather. Red was a big man with even a bigger heart. He was a man of few words, but for those that knew him you didn't need words to know his love for you. Red's legacy will live on in his son's and grandchildren. Friends and family are invited to attend a Memorial Service, Friday, March 15, 2002 at 11 a.m. At Santa Rosa Seventh Day

Mark your calendars! 2002 Intermountain Health Fair is on April 13 at the George Ingram Hall, Fairgrounds, in McArthur from 8 a.m. to Strong community support attending the Health Fair continues year after year. Last year we had over 200 people take advantage of the optional Lab Booth. We are also delighted to see more families attending.

The Health Fair admission and screenings are free to the public. There is a $32 charge for the optional lab booth. This fee includes a CBC (Complete Blood Count, Thyroid, Coronary Risk Profile and Chemistry Panel).

A PSA (marker for possible Prostate Cancer) can be obtained for $15. If you want to take advantage of these optional labs, remember to fast 12 hours before the test. You can take your medications and water, but no food or beverages can be taken. Children are welcomed. (Labs offered to children over the age of 10).

Some of the booths available will be: Blood Glucose checks, Height, Weight, Blood Pressure, Hearing and Vision, Oral Cancer, Depression and Stroke Screening, HIV Screening, and Kid Care ID and more.

The Health Fair is brought to the Intermountain area by organizations who sponsor the event either through monetary donations (which pays the rental of the hall, stamps and envelopes to mail folks their lab results, and other supplies necessary to put on the fair) or people that are on the planning committee.

If you or your organization would like to be a sponsor the Health Fair this year, or be on the planning committee please call Linda Brotherton at 336-5511, ext. 1203.

Make a day of it! Take advantage of the optional labs, have a little snack to "tie you over" (provided by Mayers Hospital Auxiliary) and visit the other screening booths and educational displays.

Crash kills local man

The California Highway Patrol is still investigating a solo traffic accident where a 78-year-old Shasta County resident died either late March 5 or early March 6.

John E. Hanson was driving a pickup when, for unknown reasons, the vehicle left Fenders Ferry Road in Round Mountain and rolled 150 feet over an embankment.

A motorist passing the scene about eight miles north of Highway 299 spotted the truck about mid morning.

correctional training, they, too, can go to work.

Wrigley said there are currently 40 deputies working in the county jail "who are waiting for their number to come up" so they can go out and work on the streets. Once deputies rently working in the jail are replaced, the department will begin new hires.

More deputies will also mean 24-hour coverage, which does not exist in every community.

The Burney substation encompasses a 1,600square mile area that, at present, is usually covered by just two deputies.

"It's 50 miles from one end of the beat to the other," Wrigley said. Currently the substation has nine patrol deputies, a school resource officer, two sergeants, one detective, three civilians in the office, and an officer who is about to complete field training.

Law enforcement leads series 4-2

Members of area law enforcement and school district employees competed Saturday before about 200 persons at the sixth DARE basketball game won by law enforcement. The event held at Burney High School raised about $300 for the drug prevention program. Above, deputy Jason Gassaway snags rebound. Others, from left, are Becky Wallace, Kelly Freeland-Sloat, Leah Turner (in background), and Will Snyder.

Students to create energy calendar

Senator Maurice Johannessen (R-Redding) has announced an area schools art competition to create next year's state energy calendar.

The California Energy Commission is seeking students throughout the state to participate in an art competition to fashion their 2003 Energy calendar.

Students from grades three through eight are being asked to submit their artistic drawings related to energy.

Judges will be looking at creative and imaginative ways students represent a variety of energy related topics such as wind, solar, hydro, energy saving tips, or fuel-efficient vehicles.

Twelve winning artists will have their illustrations printed in next year's calendar.

They will also receive a $200 U.S. Savings bond and their own copy of the Energy 2003 Calendar.

Teachers of the winning students will also receive a cash award to purchase educational materials for their classrooms.

Senator Johannessen commented, "I encourage all students to participate in this great project. Imagination and creativity are key to any new development."

It is possible that the next new method of producing power or conserving energy could be developed through the imagination of these young artists.

For further contest information and entry forms, go to www.energy.ca.gov/education. Entries must be received by April 12.

The First Lady of the World

Eleanor Roosevelt

The Mini Page celebrates Women's History Month with a story about a very unusual woman, Eleanor Roosevelt.

Eleanor Roosevelt Franklin Roosevelt (1884-1962)

Eleanor Roosevelt was the wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the 32nd president of the United States. President Harry Truman called her "the first lady of the world."

She set an example for first ladies who followed. No other first lady had been so interested and outspoken on so many causes. She became one of the most famous women in the world.

A short story

This short story will tell you a little something about Mrs. Roosevelt's concern for other people. It happened when she was 74 years old.

One afternoon she was to visit a school in Harlem, a section of New York City. While on the way to her car, she had an accident and broke her leg. But before she would let the doctors set her leg, she insisted on going on to the school.

When she arrived and saw a student with a bouquet of flowers for her, she pointed out to her driver how important it was for her to come. The children were expecting her. She did not want to disappoint them.

Her early life

Elliott Roosevelt with his three children, sons Hall and Elliott, and the oldest, Eleanor. Her brother Elliott died soon after this photo was taken. She often looked Eleanor Roosevelt was born in New York City in 1884. Her family was well-to-do. Her mother died when she was 8. Her father, who was an alcoholic, died when she was 10. She was brought up by a strict grandmother. Eleanor had a very unhappy childhood.

This photo was taken when Eleanor was 15. She was about 6 feet tall, with very blue eyes and a warm smile.

Eleanor went away to school in England when she was 15 years old. She had a great teacher who believed in her and helped her gain self-confidence.

To find out about Mrs. Roosevelt, The Mini Page talked with an expert, Dr. Allida Black, director and editor of the Eleanor Roosevelt Papers. Mrs. Roosevelt left behind 27 books 483 articles and 8,000 newspaper columns. She gave about 75 speeches a year and wrote as many as 150 letters a day.

Eleanor and Franklin

Eleanor met and fell in love with a distant cousin, Franklin D. Roosevelt. They were married when she was 21 years old. Her uncle, Theodore Roosevelt, who was president at the time, gave the bride away. Franklin's mother, Sarah, at first did not approve of the marriage and often tried to run the couple's life. Franklin became interested in politics. Eleanor supported his interest.

This family portrait shows the family after the Roosevelts had been married for 14 years. Pictured are Franklin and Eleanor and their children, Anna, Franklin Jr., Elliott, John and James

The White House Years

After her husband was struck by polio, he was elected governor of New York and later president of the United States. Eleanor overcame her shyness and made

Soon after Franklin became president in 1933, Eleanor traveled to Puerto Rico to find out about living conditions there. She did not just visit the leaders of the country. She visited and talked with the people. She wanted to find out firsthand how the people lived. She was especially interested in people having good homes in which to live.

Franklin Roosevelt served as president for 12 years, longer than any other president (1933-1945). While he was in the White House, the United States went through the Great Depression, a time in our history when many thousands of people were out of work. We also fought World War II, the greatest war effort in our history. The president was crippled by polio and did not travel very much. Mrs. Roosevelt became his eyes and ears, and traveled near and far to report to him what she saw. She shocked many people by traveling

She was a journalist, and for many years wrote a newspaper column called "My Day." She appeared on TV, had a regular radio show and made many speeches. She was a very active member of the Democratic Party.

Mrs. Roosevelt was one of the most admired women in the world. But there were also many people who did not like her and thought that she should stay at home and not have such strong opinions on so many subjects.

At times her life was in danger. But she kept on traveling and speaking out.

World War II

Mrs. Roosevelt visited American women fliers who were taking part in the war effort. While they did not fly in combat missions, they did fly fighter planes to England for use by our pilots stationed there. Equal rights for women was

Mrs. Roosevelt traveled to combat zones and visited the troops. In one two-day visit, she walked 50 miles of hospital corridors. She spoke to soldiers, asking their names and where they were from and whom they wanted her to contact when she got back home.

Equal Rights

Eleanor Roosevelt worked for equal rights for all citizens. She is pictured above with the great opera singer Marian Anderson. When a club Mrs. Roosevelt belonged to refused to let Anderson sing in its auditorium because she was black, Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the club. She also helped to arrange Marian Anderson's concert at the Lincoln Memorial.

Fleanor Roosevelt visited India in 1952. She was always interested in the ways women around the world made their living. Here she is finding out how they wove cloth.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Roosevelt still had a great deal of influence. She was appointed one of the delegates to the United Nations. She served as the chairman of a committee that wrote the International Declaration of Human Rights, setting out the

Two new counselors, Debbie Barnes and Al Huitric, have joined the staff at Mayers Crossroads Counseling Clinics in Burney and Fall River Mills.

Al Huitric is a licensed individual and marriage family therapist who began practicing at Crossroads in November 2000.

Debbie Barnes began counseling at the clinic in December and has been a certified alcohol and drug counselor for 10 years. Program Director Diane Tetreault (interviewed for the Feb. 13 issue of the Intermountain News) is also a marriage and family therapist at the clinic.

Huitric sees patients and couples for individual counseling here on a part time basis and in his private practice in Redding.

While he works with a variety of concerns, Huitric said many people come to see him for relationship stresses, depression and anxiety. "My focus is on helping find ways to have more satisfying relationships, to reduce stress and improve communication, to help them recognize their strengths and to use that untapped strength more

"I try to assist people in making the best use of the therapy process to prioritize their needs and find ways to identify and practice long range changes in their life.'

Huitric moved to the Intermountain area because he likes the lifestyle of living in the country. "I identify with a lot of the values the people of the east county have," he said.

He also understands when there is resistance to counseling and therapy.

"There is a tendency throughout this county for people to handle things on their own," he said. "And there is not a lot of awareness or predisposition to use mental health services. Some find it embarrassing."

Huitric is a graduate of St. Mary's College in Moraga and earned his masters degree in counseling psychology at California State University, Hayward.

He initially worked in high school educational counseling, but in 1984 moved from the Bay Area to Burbank to do inpatient social work in a new chemical dependency program.

He came to Shasta County in 1988 as the clinical supervisor for the New Beginnings Program.

That same year he became licensed to practice marriage and family therapy and entered into a part time private practice as well.

Since then he has continued to work in private practice and in both supervisory and clinical roles for chemical dependency and psychiatric care programs at the former Redding Specialty and Guardian Hospitals. At Crossroads, he provides mental health services for any interested employees of Mayers Memorial Hospital, as well as the general community.

"As much as possible, I try to normalize what is going on (for people). That they are not alone and that there are definite patterns, typically due to unmet needs. And by satisfying those needs, people begin to feel better," he said. He also teaches relaxation techniques "to help people find ways to slow down and address their problems without an overwhelming sense of pressure."

Barnes said she sees a critical need in this area for the services that Crossroads provides and believes it's the responsibility of individual communities to address their problems. Because the Intermountain area is isolated, she said, "it can contain its problems," but "the community should also provide the corrective measures. "It gives a community the sense of empowerment to do that," Barnes said. 'Whenever someone sees a problem, I believe it is our responsibility to address it." Barnes said she brings her own experiences to her work of helping others.

takes having walked through the fire to recognize the heat," she said.

Where others may regard someone's addiction as "a weakness and an unwillingness to apply willpower," Barnes said,

"addiction is a disease. "It's an involuntary and lifethreatening condition and it has three elements that define it: addiction has observable symptoms, it's progressive and it's treatable. "If people would see that, they wouldn't condemn the addict, but honor treatment as an alternative to incarceration," she said

Prop. 36 is successful. Barnes earned her substance abuse certification from California State University Hayward and is a recent graduate of Shasta College.

For the past two years she has been in juvenile probation in Redding in the Juvenile Accountability Boards program. "It's an innovative program based on the restorative justice concept," she explained. "It gives juveniles a heightened awareness of their actions and their impact." Barnes is also an actress who performs with the Riverfront Theater in Redding and is the winner, with Virginia Dunner, of an Actress of the Year award for her role as Lucille in The Cemetery Club.

She also established a program for women in recovery, L'Armoire de Dieu ("The Closet of God"), which provided counseling, clothing and socializa-

As someone who was 100 pounds over a healthy weight for many years - she's lost 147 pounds - Barnes ran an aerobics program in Anderson called Fat, Fit and Fabulous.

"The exercises addressed issues of obese women such as the stress weight puts on the knee, hip, ankle and foot," she said.

As a Christian, Barnes believes that in her service to God, she was directed to the Intermountain area.

She has two sons, Caleb Land, 26, an actor living in Los Angeles ("remember that name," she said) and Arron Land, 28.

She is also about to be married. Crossroads counseling groups are offered Monday through Friday. Most, but not all, clients are court-referred. "If you have a need - if drinking or drugs are a problem, come in and participate," Barnes said. "This is a program with a lot of compassion and understanding. "There are many reasons people can become dependant on alcohol and drugs. Our program imparts knowledge - and with that knowledge people become empowered to make choices.

"When people make healthy choices they have a reverence for our preciousness, because life is precious."

Their essay topic was, "As Editor of the Philadelphia Gazette, Interview at Least Two Signers of the Declaration of Independence and Write An Article for the July 5, 1776 Edition."

To qualify, the student's essays had to include why the two signers were willing to risk so much and what they thought would happen when the Declaration reached the King of England, according to Essay Chairperson Paula Tassen.

First place winners from each grade receive $50.

Tassen said two of the three essay judges were history teachers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Regarding Heroes

Editor:

The word "hero" has lately been awarded to many deserving individuals. These people come from all walks of life, backgrounds and capabilities.

Their common ground derives from being what the dictionary describes generally as a person admired for his achievements and quali-

I was deeply saddened to hear of the recent loss of my former Boy Scout-Master; George Faggella, Sr. This man clearly fits the definition of a hero.

I would like to take you back in time to Burney, California during the mid-60's:

On any given Saturday, early in the morning you would see a green Land Rover leading a convoy of vehicles filled with excited wide-eyed Boy Scouts on their way to yet another week-end camp-out.

I would like to emphasize the magnitude of the achievements made by Scout-Master George. No community in the Mt. Lassen Area council could boast of the success of Troop 46, Burney, CA.

To his credit, eight boys achieved the rank of Eagle Scout and many others were close behind. Merit badges were plentiful, all shaping and molding young Intermountain boys into responsible men.

I can safely say that, outside the immediate family, Scout-Master George was the strongest influence in my young life. Scouting under his leadership not only taught me the basic fundamentals, it gave me specialized skills.

In my chosen career, I have been commended for qualities such as leadership, organizational skills, and being a team player. All are essential for a safe, efficient work environment that is free of hostility. My job is performed the way I was taught in Troop 46. I tell all subordinates to "Be Prepared." If Scout-Master George didn't influence your career, he certainly influenced your hobbies. Burney "old-timers" might remember a little tow-haired boy pulling a red wagon around town, selling honey. That was me and the merit badge was painfully earned!

If you saw boys fishing and swimming in Burney Creek, they were Scouts. If you saw boys helping someone in need, they were Scouts. Scout-Master George's number one rule was improving the community and environment. Yes, those boys were George's Scouts. I could go on and on with treasured memories about Scout-Master George. I'm sure by now, you have a clear picture of the hero he was to so many.

In closing, I would like to thank the Faggella family for sharing George Sr. with the entire community. Thank you for his monthly camp-outs, our Thursday night meetings, and his many personal hours devoted to Scouting; all priceless.

To Scout-Master George Faggella, Sr., wherever you are, right now, from me to you: On my honor, I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country.

We will miss you, George, but you'll never be forgotten!

-Edward Louis Schroeder Correctional Sergeant California Department of Corrections San Quentin State Prison San Quentin, CA Eagle Scout Troop 46 Burney, Jan. 17, 1966
