Woman pleads her guilt to embezzling

BY MEG FOX

The former treasurer for the Burney High School Boosters Club pled guilty June 26 to felony embezzlement of more than $70,000 in money donated for student activities and academic scholarships.

According to court records, Linda Holdren of Burney wrote checks totaling more than $66,000 to members of her family and for cash. Another $6,000 in receipts was never deposited to the Booster account.

Sentencing is set for Aug. 27, when she could receive up to one year in county jail.

"Over time, Mrs. Holdren paid the money back, (but) after an audit of the Booster's account, a determination was made that an additional $31,177 was due and she then paid that," said Shasta County Deputy District Attorney Matt Stegman.

Some of the Booster money was taken and paid back periodically. Another sum was reimbursed prior to a pending audit.

"It appears that all of the money that was taken was reimbursed," said Stegman. Holdren has also paid the attorney's fees and the cost of the audit.

At least $13,000 was discovered missing from the Booster Club account in April 2001 after a club member tried to pay by check for $400 worth of items for last year's Sober Grad party.

Based on Holdren's treasury report for February 2001, the board believed they had a balance of at least $10,000. Instead, the balance was about $200.

The Booster's attorney and Holdren agreed in November that in exchange for full restitution, the Boosters would not prosecute.

But at least one community member said the decision gave the wrong message to the community and to the students and asked the Shasta Grand Jury to investigate.

The criminal matter was then turned over to the DA's office for investigation.

McArthur man honored by CH2M Hill

Harlan E. Moyer of McArthur was recently honored in Denver, Colo. for his 50 years of service with the engineering firm, CH2M Hill, Ltd.

Mr. Moyer began his career in 1952 as a surveyor with Clair A. Hill & Associates in Redding, after earning his degree in civil engineering from the University of Nevada.

He became project director for the company, overseeing such projects as the $25 million Beale Air Force Housing Project, the $50 million Lake Tahoe Water Quality Control Project, and, later, the $100 million Upper Occoquan Sewage Authority Regional Water Reclamation Project in Manassas, Va.

In 1971, Clair A. Hill & Associates merged with Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Merryfield of Corvallis, Ore. and became known as CH2M Hill.

The firm moved their corporate headquarters from Corvallis to Denver in 1982.

Mr. Moyer succeeded Clair A. Hill as Redding Regional Manager in 1974.

In 1977 he was elected president and CEO of CH2M Hill.

He retired to the Fall River Valley in 1992 and today serves as senior vice president of the company.

He and his wife, Carol, also have a home in Denver.

Morale lower after hospital makes cuts

Additional $80,000 loss in May reported

BY MEG FOX

In the wake of last month's cuts in staff hours, Mayers Memorial Hospital has taken another financial hit with a reported $80,000 loss in May.

"We spent more than we took in," said CEO Jerry Fikes.

About $30,000 of the deficit was the result of accepting and treating a patient with Medi-Cal pending.

"Most hospitals won't take someone unless they have their Medi-Cal card. We try to be a community-friendly place, but this time it bit us," Fikes said.

The patient's family failed to finish the enrollment process.

"It's distressing," said Fikes. "We had to serve notice and, while we do have the ability to get (payment), if a family doesn't have it, you can't get blood from a turnip."

Fikes said that for now the hospital would continue to accept patients with Medi-Cal pending. "Most people take care of business."

The hospital also had equipment repairs and replacements in May. "If you have antique equipment that breaks, it doesn't matter if you have money or not," he said.

Last year, the hospital ended its fiscal year with a $200,000 deficit and Fikes expects a similar same red figure this year, "depending on how the state treats us."

There have been a few repercussions since Fikes announced cost cutting measures "of varying amounts to varying people" on June 13.

The hospital's directors said people often, sometimes on a daily basis, discuss hospital issues with them, but there has not been a "wave of discontent" over this.

However, at the hospital's June 26 board meeting, Dr. Dan Dahle told the directors that he was concerned about employee morale.

"Dr. Dahle said there was not good communication between the employees and administration," said Fikes after the meeting.

The hospital reduced clerical staff hours in the X-ray, administration, and medical staff departments and asked managers to cut their overtime. The hospital also modified the pay rate for ambulance staff based on "the level required by the state."

For the first two pay periods since the cuts went into effect, the hospital has saved $10,000, Fikes said.

In an interview Monday Dahle said that many hospital employees, especially those whose wages are affected, have come to talk to him.

Dahle is Chief of Staff and also Director of Emergency Room Services.

"It's a fairly big issue," he said. "Rural hospitals are in trouble all over the country, but (Mayers) has had these cutbacks and the employees feel disenfranchised."

"A lot feel that with the new administration, and with (former administrators) Everett and Judi Beck gone, employees haven't been able to have a voice in the decision-making."

"There's a lot of give and take that could be done," Dahle said.

"There is a corps of really good nurses and aides and CNA's and EMT's on the front line, and no one is listening to them."

"Administration has to cope with the state regulations and are coming down with edicts, but the people who are on the floor don't get to impart their ideas to administration," Dahle said.

Dahle said when there were similar problems at Big Valley Health Center, they had a retreat and "a lot of good ideas came from the employees."

Said Fikes, "Some employees are distressed by the changes, but we need to be doing them and nowhere is it more evident than the lost $80,000 in May," said Fikes earlier.

Road to be closed during fireworks

The dirt road at the end of Bailey Street in Burney will be closed to parked cars and traffic during the Burney Basin Days fireworks on Saturday night.

While the south end of the football field is a popular spot to watch the annual light show, parked cars are a potential problem.

"It's Burney Cemetery property and I made the decision because last year the fire trucks were blocked and in case of an emergency, they can't get out," said Cemetery District Manager Larry Armstrong.

The Zambelli Fireworks Internationale show begins at dark at the Burney High School football field.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for children and are available at any of the banks in the area.

The gates open at 5:30 p.m. for games, food booths and live music by Blue Moon Productions.

Locals attend assembly

The Burney and McArthur congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses recently attended their annual two-day Circuit Assembly at Yuba City and a three-day District Convention at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

The two-day event in Yuba City, recently, had a peak attendance of 1060, representing congregations from the greater Redding area.

"Fear God and Give Him Glory" was the theme for the assembly and those attending learned there is a healthy fear of God, a fear of displeasing him.

It was pointed out that this fear should move a God-fearing person to right acts.

Recently the "Zealous Kingdom Proclaimers" District Convention was held at the Cow Palace in San Francisco with delegates coming from northern California and southern Oregon.

Two of the highlights of this event were the ordination by water baptism of 45 new ministers on Saturday afternoon and a full-costume drama depicting part of the life of the prophet Jeremiah on Sunday morning.

On Sunday afternoon, 9405 listened attentively to the Public Discourse, "The Scene of This World is Changing." The speaker stated that with all the advances in our world, there is still a great lack of love, peace and good human relations.

He then pointed to the Bible's hope for the future; first, God will destroy false religion and man's rulership; then, God will establish his rulership over this earth.

The program concluded by encouraging all in attendance to abound in fine works as zealous kingdom proclaimers.

Burney Water directors hear about ballot initiative

BY MEG FOX

Two of the Burney Water District's directors were enthused as they listened last week to the potential benefits that could come from funding their dormant Parks and Recreation District.

But they weren't so sure about getting a ballot initiative to acquire the necessary property tax dollars and they certainly wanted many more facts and figures.

"I'm just here to plant the seed," Cindy Dodds, executive director of the non-profit Tri-County Community Network in Burney, told the three directors who attended the June 19 water board meeting. "This idea has been banging around in my head and it needs to bang around in yours."

Having recently received the school district's okay to lease a parcel of school property for a community park, Dodds and the parent groups planning the project are looking at the next steps — funding.

One option is to activate the Parks and Recreation District and fund it with a property tax assessment.

Dodds suggested the water district's board could oversee it rather than elect five new board members from the community.

The site is located on Bailey Avenue between the Little League field and the water district's community pool.

TCCN plans to progressively develop it to include a park with play structures for toddlers, a playground for school-age children, a skateboard park, picnic facilities, a walking trail and parking.

"A bigger plan includes an outdoor amphitheater, basketball courts and a skating rink," said Project Coordinator Lynn Erickson in an earlier interview.

The Toddler Park will be developed first and has received grant funding from the Children and Families First Commission of Shasta County.

Dodds said she and TCCN's board of directors share a similar vision of developing the land for the benefit of families and children.

"We are also looking for ways for young people in the community to find their wings.

"The town is beginning to look like us," said Dodds, referring to being middle-aged. "Ultimately we need to develop the confidence and skills of our young people so they can be doing things like serving on boards.

"We eventually will need to go home and plant flowers and let someone else do this," she said.

To that end, Dodds said, "we are turning the reins of this project over to these parents. They have the power to change this community."

Their involvement and commitment has also led her to believe that a ballot initiative is feasible and likely to pass.

"I'm confident we would have no trouble passing it. We have highly motivated people working with us already and I think others would see that an added assessment to their property tax would be valuable to the community.

If a Parks and Recreation District were to get funded, it would open the door to grant funding.

The hook for the Burney Water District is that it could be the dollars needed for the pool, which operates in the red. Dodds said she and her board also have an interest in keeping the pool open and affordable.

"It's a huge community asset and we need to find a solution to maintaining it," she said.

"This is all still a dream," said Director Rowdy Yates, adding that he would like a park for young people and would like to see young people more involved in community government.

"I think your dream is good," said Board President Jackie Young. "But I have a lot of questions as far as the water district is concerned. Where do we get the money to get on a ballot?"

Dodds said she didn't have any idea what that cost would be.

"It's gonna cost you," said Yates.

Young also had doubts that the community would want to get involved in fundraisers for the initiative. "People are tired of it, though if you could get grants maybe it would fly."

They also briefly discussed forming a community services district.

"I think that's impossible at this time," Young said.

When asked to do more research and provide them with more facts, Dodds said, "I'm just flying this by to see if you have an interest in pursuing the idea."

"I love the idea," said Young, "but whether the water district should get involved is another story. To take this on would be a huge endeavor."

Students from Burney Elementary School connect with professionals in careers that utilize and protect resources at field trip

BY MEG FOX

It was a like an overnight camp, a field trip, and a science conference combined. It was fun and a great opportunity for the 17 elementary school students from Burney and Fall River who participated in the Fall River Natural Resource Institute for two days recently.

"Our idea was to introduce students to the natural resources in the Fall River Valley and to connect kids with professionals in careers that utilize and protect those resources," said Kari Rose, who teaches sixth grade at Burney Elementary School.

Rose is the coordinator for the Gifted and Talented Education (GATE) program at BES and the Institute was developed for fifth and sixth grade GATE students from both school sites.

She is also the education coordinator for the Fall River Resource Conservation District, which funded most of the Institute through a Fall River Restoration Project educational grant.

Lava Creek Lodge provided food and lodging and the Fall River Joint Unified School District covered transportation and substitute teacher costs.

Bonnie Lewis, the fifth-sixth grade teacher at Fall River Elementary, participated along with four high school students selected as team leaders.

After breakfast each morning, students were divided into four teams and, while some headed out to the deck to study aquatic resources, soils protection or noxious weeds, others boarded vans to visit a local ranch or into the woods to learn more about forestry.

For the Ag Resources segment, students toured Spring Creek Ranch with Dan Rajunas.

"The ag tour was just amazing," said Rose.

"Spring Creek has an organic beef operation, leasing to the Prather Ranch, and the kids learned what it means to run an organic beef operation.

"They hiked to one of the springs, bottle fed a calf and got to see a new foal that was born that that morning."

Carrie Piroso of the California Department of Food and Agriculture led sessions on noxious weeds. "The kids ran around in their socks to collect seeds and then identified their collection."

One of the challenges for the students was to invent a noxious weed and explain where it invades, how it got there, the problems it causes and how to eliminate it.

"The students were so creative," said Rose.

The students inadvertently learned about working in all weather conditions. "In our two days at the Institute it was sunny and it snowed and so we learned what it's like to work in the field no matter what the weather is."

Other specialists were Pete Johnson and Bob Carey of Wm. Beaty & Associates who led the forestry and timber resources studies; Maria Ellis and Jeff Cook of Spring Rivers Ecological Sciences for aquatic invertebrate and plants; Tim Weaver, director of the Fall River RCD on Wild About Wetlands; and Dale Kroschel of Natural Resources Conservation Service and Bonnie Lampley, president of Lawrence & Associates for water quality and soils protection.

"It was very educational and very fun, too," said Zac Harper, 11, a Burney fifth grader.

"We learned about insects and we learned about petrified wood out in the forest. We learned that Fall River is an important part of our watershed. I also learned that a farm does more than just provide food and that blew me away."

At five o'clock, everyone met back in the Lodge for group challenges, skits and dinner. There was more fun by the campfire before tucking in at 10.

Harper said if he could, he would like to go again in the sixth grade. "If I get good grades on my SAT 9 test I can go and that would be pretty cool."

Other students who participated were Brad Kyle, Rusty Scovel, Juliana Corr, Lydia McDemos, Georgia

Tim Weaver, director of the Fall River Resource Conservation District, leads a session on wetlands with a few of the 17 Burney and Fall River elementary school students who participated in the two-day Fall River Natural Resource Institute at Lava Creek Lodge. At right is Burney student Ryan Watson.

Perkins, Michele Vaughn and Cassidy Ward from Burney. The high school team leaders were Roy Bell, Dale Haase, Nichole Sahlin, Mimi Brown and Eric Swain from Fall River and Tara White and Katy Pearson from Burney.

60th Edition of Covered Wagon for sale at Redding Mall

The Shasta Historical Society's 2002 edition of The Covered Wagon is available at the Shasta Historical Society headquarters in the Downtown Redding Mall and in the gift store at the new Turtle Bay Museum.

The Covered Wagon is edited by Jenny Abbe of Redding. She is the daughter-in-law of Harlan and Carol Moyer of McArthur.

The 2002 edition features the gold rush tale of John William Harrison of Grizzly Gulch. Harrison is a North Carolina native who came to the Whiskeytown area in 1850 and died there in 1890 at the hand of his wife's first husband. The story is written by his great-grandson Gerard Harrison of New York.

This edition also features a story on Copper production in Shasta County, a query into the death of two boys in the 1880s after contracting smallpox, possibly through the mail.

There is a pictorial on Dreamland, Redding's old vaudeville theatre, a look back at the 60-year-history of the Shasta Community Concert Association, and many other historical photos and stories.

This year's Covered Wagon is the 60th edition of the society's flagship publication. The cover features a painting by local artist Usana Weaver.

The News garners 2 state awards

The Intermountain News won a first place award in sports photography and a second place award in investigative / enterprise reporting announced Saturday at a state competition awards ceremony in San Diego.

A series of articles on the staffing and financial situation of the Burney Fire Department garnered News reporter Meg Fox the second place award for newspapers under 4,300 circulation.

Publisher Craig Harrington received a first place in sports photography for a girls' basketball photo.

The awards were presented during the 114th annual convention of the California Newspaper Publishers Association, June 26-29.

Stephen Laxineta, publisher of the Los Angeles Independent, was installed as president of CNPA, following past president Marcia McQuern, publisher of The Press-Enterprise, Riverside.

Some 400 newspapers, from the smallest weekly to the largest metropolitan daily, make up the membership of CNPA.

to be pleased. It's management's obligation to discern the course to follow...and it's not surprising if people aren't always happy with the decision."

Fikes and the board did agree to work on improving communication.

"We discussed employee surveys and other ideas so that employees can express their views and concerns on a system-wide basis," said Fikes.

"I think they'll take a good look," said Dahle. "It's tough times, but by improving communication, I think we can mitigate a lot of the problems that could come up in the future."

Music to Salute Our Country

American Songbook

This July Fourth marks a special time in our history. Since Sept. 11, all Americans have joined together to support our country in our war against terrorism.

By singing patriotic songs, we can express our feelings through music. In this Mini Page, we proudly print the words to a few of the songs that mean so much to all of us. We also have given you information about who wrote the words. Your parents probably know the tunes. So gather around, and sing out, America!

"God Bless America"
Irving Berlin (1888-1989)

God bless America, land that I love.
Stand beside her and guide her
Through the night with a light from above.
From the mountains, to the prairies,
To the oceans white with foam.
God bless America, my home sweet home.

"This Land Is Your Land"
Woody Guthrie (1912-1967)

This land is your land, this land is my land
From California to the New York island,
From the redwood forest, to the Gulf Stream waters,
This land was made for you and me.

"You're a Grand Old Flag"
George M. Cohan (1878-1942)

You're a grand old flag,
You're a high-flying flag,
And forever in peace may you wave.
You're the emblem of
The land I love.
The home of the free and the brave.
Ev'ry heart beats true
'Neath the Red, White and Blue
Where there's never a boast or brag.
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
Keep your eye on the grand old flag.

Irving Berlin wrote some of America's most beloved songs, including "God Bless America." He wrote it in 1918 and put it aside. In 1938, as World War II was beginning, he wanted to write a "peace" song. He made some changes, and it was first performed by singer Kate Smith on a radio broadcast. Mr. Berlin established The God Bless America Fund to benefit American youth, with funds being distributed mainly to the Girl Scout Council of Greater New York, and the Greater New York Councils of the Boy Scouts of America.

THIS LAND IS YOUR LAND
By Woody Guthrie
© Used by Permission

Woody Guthrie wrote more than 3,000 songs. He was born in Oklahoma. Like many people in the state (called "Okies"), he was forced to leave when the Great Dust Storm hit the Great Plains in 1935. Okies were the basis of many of his songs, which he called "people's songs." Woody ended up in California. He loved to travel and spent much of his time doing just that. This interest inspired him to write "This Land Is Your Land." He also wrote several novels. He served in the Army and Merchant Marines.

George M. Cohan was one of the leading figures in American theater in the early 1900s. He was a song-and-dance man. He also wrote the words and songs for many plays and musicals. In 1906 he wrote a musical called "George Washington Jr." One of the songs in it was "You're a Grand Old Flag."

Sing Out, America

Today, a copy of the Star-Spangled Banner that inspired Francis Scott Key to write our national anthem flies over Fort McHenry in Baltimore.

Pikes Peak, a famous mountain near Colorado Springs, Colo., was the inspiration for Katharine Lee Bates' words to "America the Beautiful."

The Liberty Bell rang out to announce the adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

"The Star-Spangled Banner"
Francis Scott Key (1779-1843)

O, say can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars,
Through the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
O, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

Francis Scott Key was a lawyer in Washington, D.C. During the War of 1812, he was held prisoner on a British ship for 10 days. During that time, the British were bombing Fort McHenry. One night Key could see the bombs bursting but could not tell if the fort had surrendered or not. When the sun came up, he could see the flag still flying. The Americans had not lost, and Key was inspired to write the song. It became our national anthem in 1931.

"America the Beautiful"
Katharine Lee Bates (1859-1929)

O beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed his grace on thee
And crown thy good with
From sea to shining sea!

Katharine Lee Bates, a poet, writer and educator, lived in Wellesley, Mass., for most of her life. She spent the summer of 1893 in Colorado. One day she went to the top of Pikes Peak. When she saw the view, she jotted down some notes. She later made a poem from the words. It was first published in 1895. It was eventually put to the melody written by Samuel A. Ward. Many people wanted it to be our official national anthem.

"America"
Samuel Francis Smith (1808-1895)

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing.
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the Pilgrim's pride,
From every mountainside
Let freedom ring!

The words were written by Samuel Francis Smith, a Baptist minister, in 1832. Dr. Smith came across a song called "God Save the King," liked the music, and decided to write some words about America to the tune. The song with his words was first sung at a Fourth of July event in Boston. The tune is the same as the British national anthem, "God Save the Queen."

Look through your paper for events celebrating July Fourth. Make up a song to sing.

Next week, read all about butterflies.

Classy façade fronts traditional family home

By Associated Designs

Compact and spacious at the same time, the Houston is as economical to build as it is to heat. It's a fairly traditional plan, with bedrooms upstairs and family living spaces on the ground floor.

The front façade is totally symmetrical. At center, classic columns support a balcony that doubles as a front porch. Tile crowns the hip roof while shutters add a dash of color.

Casual living areas are at the rear, formal spaces up front. The family room, nook and kitchen are bright and entirely open. There are no barriers here to block conversation or movement. A large bay window, ideal for a wide window seat, expands the family room. Sliders in the nook open onto a large and sunny screened porch.

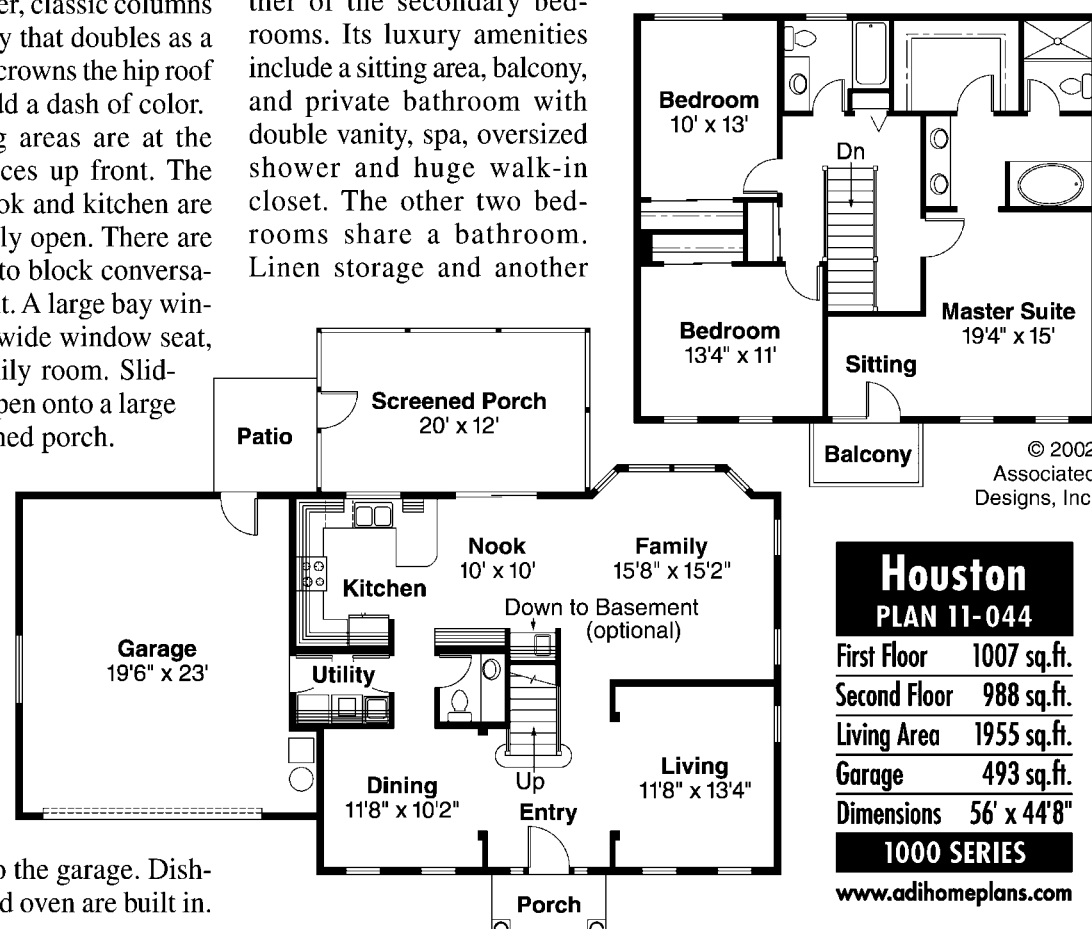

The kitchen is U-shaped and has lots of cupboard and counter space, including lazy Susan shelving that allows full use of the corner cabinets. Utilities are close at hand, in a pass-through to the garage. Dishwasher, range and oven are built in.

A small wet bar, nestled in the alcove under the stairs, is convenient to both the family room and living room. The powder room is centrally located as well, close to everything on the ground floor.

The spacious master suite that dominates the Houston's upper level is more than double the size of either of the secondary bedrooms. Its luxury amenities include a sitting area, balcony, and private bathroom with double vanity, spa, oversized shower and huge walk-in closet. The other two bedrooms share a bathroom. Linen storage and another closet are in the hallway.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, OR 97402. Please specify the Houston 11-044 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 350 home plans is available for $15. For more information, call (800) 634-0123.
