RIG-ORMORTIS

This 2003 big rig was frozen in this awkward position following a solo crash on Highway 139 near Hayden Hill Thursday morning. The driver was not injured, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Minor injuries in big rig wrecks

Two separate tractor-trailer crashes caused traffic delays, but neither driver sustained serious injuries, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Thursday at 7:05 a.m., Tito M. Puentes, 31, of Sun Valley, Nev., was driving south on Highway 139 just south of Hayden Hill Road and at about 40-45 miles per hour when he entered a curve posted for 40 mph.

The rear trailer of his set of doubles drifted off the right side of the roadway, the CHP reported.

As he attempted to bring his vehicle back onto the highway he lost control and crossed the center line, ending up on the east roadway edge.

The front end of the tractor struck an embankment, flipping the rear axle straight up in the air.

The first trailer came to rest at an angle on its right side with the front still attached to the fifth wheel.

The rear trailer remained intact and on all four tires.

It is believed that the driver was wearing his three-point restraint device, which prevented any injury.

On Nov. 5 at 2:44 p.m., Carl O. Jaeger, 60, of Fall River Mills was driving west on Highway 299 about one mile east of Oak Run Road pulling a flatbed loaded with bags of diatomaceous earth.

Driving about 40 mph, he entered a left-hand curve, allowing the vehicle to drift off the roadway edge, the CHP reported. As he attempted to steer his vehicle back out onto the roadway, he lost control.

The rear trailer tipped over onto its left side, causing the tractor to jackknife and slide off the highway edge and into the dirt embankment.

The rear trailer came to rest on its side, disconnected from the tractor and partially losing some of its load.

The westbound lane was completely blocked and traffic was routed past the scene using the eastbound lane.

Jaeger refused medical treatment for minor injuries.

In a third accident, Craig Hermes-meyer, 46, of Santa Rosa was Local incumbents Ruth Knoch and Les Cufaude, both of the Fall River Valley, will return to their seats as trustees for Mayers Memorial Hospital District.

In the Nov. 5 General Election Knoch garnered 1,573 votes (46.7%) from six precincts in Shasta County and 141 votes (48.12%) from two precincts in Lassen County.

Cufaude had 928 votes (27.6%) in Shasta and 83 votes (28.33%) in Lassen counties.

Challenger Robert Forman of Burney was close behind Cufaude in Shasta County with 866 (25.7%) votes. He received 67 (22.87%) of the 293 total votes from Lassen County.

In Modoc County, David Bradshaw of Lookout won the race for Supervisor of District 5.

Bradshaw, who is the first county supervisor from Big Valley in 40 years, easily won with 438 votes (64.79%) to David Porter Misso's 237 votes (35.06%). Misso lives in Tullake.

Bradshaw, who replaces Supervisor Nancy Huffman of Tullake, will be sworn in on Jan. 6.

Republican Sam Aanestad was elected State Senator for District 4, which includes Shasta and Siskiyou counties.

District wide, Aanestad garnered 137,448 votes (58 percent). Democrat Marianne Bopp Smith had 86,935 votes and Libertarian Robert Underwood had 12,940.

Public has 'no comment' on cuts

BY MEG FOX

School Board President Nancy Sisk asked the roomful of people at last week's board meeting for their comments about the proposed budget cuts, now somewhat reduced by the county's discovery of misplaced site block grants, but no one said a word.

The trustees for the Fall River JUSD said they would meet again Nov. 12 to approve an amended 2002-2003 budget.

Supt. Eric Newton commented that at two community meetings on the proposed cuts, people told him that in looking to the future they want the district "to stay ahead of the game as much as possible."

He said people are also thinking about restructuring the district. "Some have already volunteered for committees," he said.

Several parents were in the audience to hear the board's decision on a request to revise or do away

County schools find extra monies

BY MEG FOX

As the schools in the Fall River JUSD were figuring out how to function with $15,000 less in their site budgets, some misplaced monies landed in their laps.

The Shasta County Office of Education recently discovered about $51,000 in state Site Block Grants designated in 1997-1998 and 1998-1999 for six schools in this district.

"This is a late-breaking event that we found out about four days ago," said Supt. Eric Newton at the Nov. 6 school board meeting in Burney.

"This information comes as a surprise, a good surprise, but it does complicate what's happening," said Newton.

The administration recently proposed $321,500 in cuts to its already approved budget as a result of state budget cuts.

The school board has decided to approve an amended budget at a special meeting on Nov. 12.

In Shasta County, 58.5 percent of 25,436 registered voters cast their ballots.

Lassen County had 53.9 percent of its 14,584 registered voters turn out, while Siskiyou County reported a 62.7 percent turnout of 25,436 registered voters.

Most Lassen, Modoc, Siskiyou and Shasta County residents voted No on every proposition, with the exception of Prop. 49 for court consolidation, which means municipal courts can never be re-established in any of California's 58 counties.

Trustees vote to keep school senior projects with senior projects, but, as anticipated, the trustees voted to keep senior projects and other graduation requirements in place for the Class of 2003.

Trustee Connie Sebastian said she wanted to pursue the senior projects this year because many students have already gone ahead with them and she didn't want to "upset the apple carts."

"It's a little late to change this now," added Sisk. "It's too bad this was not brought to us last spring."

Because of various complaints about the senior project voiced at previous board meetings, the school board is going to appoint a committee to review and revise current practices.

The review team would be made up of the high school principals and the senior project advisors, two board members, junior and senior high school students from both sites appointed by the principal and two parents of other junior and senior students, also appointed by the principal.

Newton recommended the review team give the school board a written review by March 24, 2003 and that the board act on that report at their April 2 meeting.

"And thusly set the issue at rest for the Class of 2004 and (possibly) beyond," Newton said.

In another matter, the board changed the date of its December board and organizational meeting to Dec. 10.

Lizz Thomason, the district's director of curriculum and special projects, described the need to purchase remedial materials for at-risk seventh through twelfth grade students.

As part of California's new High School Exit Exam requirement, schools must identify students in jeopardy of failing it as early as the seventh grade, she said.

"In order to do that, we need materials that are aligned with the state standards and the high school exit exam," she said.

The board agreed to adopt materials to improve reading, spelling and test taking skills for student use during their regular classroom time.

"We piloted these last year and they were quite successful," Thomason said.

Trustee Teri Vigil asked Fall River High School Ag Advisor Ken Hutchings if had any news about the state's plans for the Future Farmers of America Program under newly elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction Jack O'Connell.

Current Supt. Delaine Eastin is closing the state's regional Ag Education offices and relocating the 14 staff members to Sacramento and most involved in FFA see this as the beginning of the end of local FFA programs and competitions.

"He said he'd revisit this if he were elected and he has been a friend of ag," Hutchings said.

In other business, the trustees had two expulsion hearings and returned one Burney High School student to the school on a contract and expelled another student to the Burney Community Day School.

Shasta College's plans to remodel the former Lyons Pharmacy building in Burney as a site for community classes is still in the works, according to Shasta College President Dr. Doug Treadway.

It's not for lack of funding, but county planning department permit issues that have slowed the project down.

"We're ready to go, but can't get a permit," Dr. Treadway said.

He expects construction to start later this month and, since most of the work is indoors, the college may open its new center this spring.

Ten-year-old Schyler Rice of Burney sang on stage at the Reno Hilton Saturday for about 2,000 people.

The Burney Elementary School fifth grader was asked to sing the National Anthem for the general session of the NAPA Auto Parts Western Division Convention after organizers heard her sing at a convention banquet last year.

Saturday's gig landed her two more big engagements.

The 4'6" daughter of Jerry and Denise Rice has been asked to sing at the Loggers Convention taking place at the Redding Civic Auditorium in February.

She was also asked to sing at the start of the NAPA 200 NASCAR Winston West series race Aug. 16 at the Stockton 99 Speedway in Stockton.

Her Dad manages the Last year, Schyler was selected to sing the National Anthem, along with 89 other Girl Scouts, for the Girl Scouts 90th anniversary celebration at the Arco Arena in Sacramento. She sang the National Anthem at the Shasta Speedway in Anderson and she recently sang for Burney High School Homecoming.

Martha Montoya was all set to start serving plates of enchiladas and more when a fire broke out in the restaurant around 4 p.m. Oct. 26 causing about $10,000 in overall damage.

Burney Fire Lt. Rick Moore said volunteers had the fire contained within 20 minutes and mostly mopped up after an hour.

The fire was caused by a short in the electrical wiring in the hallway next to the kitchen.

The new restaurant is at 37063 Main Street at the site of the former Alvarez Café.

There's an email going around that says if you want to know how fresh the bread in your grocery store is, look at the color of the tie that keeps the package closed.

The rumor is that there's a different colored twist tie on the package to designate which day of the week the bread was baked, such as a blue tie for bread baked on Monday, a green tie for Tuesday and so on.

According to Holiday Quality Foods in Burney and snopes.com, a Web site that mostly debunks urban legends, this tale of ties happens to be mostly true.

Holiday Quality Foods Manager Cady Hathaway said that not all of the bread packages have ties, though their Earthgrains (now owned by Sara Lee) and Orowheat brands do.

Another hitch is that each bread company uses its own color code, so a red tie that's fresh-baked for one brand may be two days old for another.

Snopes.com says the bread tie legend isn't really worth the time it would take to memorize any code since bread is not kept on the shelf for longer than a couple of days anyway.

The true purpose of the colored tie system is to help a store's restocker recognize which loaves need to be taken off the shelf.

If you're really after almost-fresh-from-the-oven loaves, contact the manufacturer of your favorite brand and ask what (if any) color-coded tag system they use and what their delivery schedule to your favorite store is.

Band seeks festival funds

The Fall River High School Band is making plans to attend the three-day World of Music Festival this spring in San Jose.

They attended the competition in the spring of 2000 and received an "excellent" score in the small school category.

The band will be attending local competitions to prepare them for this event.

Since each band member must pay $160 to participate, they are seeking sponsors for students who are unable to pay those fees.

Also, due to recent district budget cuts and a shortage of funds at each site, the band also needs help covering transportation costs.

Fundraiser activities are being planned to cover these extra group expenses, including a breakfast, a car-wash, and a silent auction at the annual Winter Concert on Dec. 18 in the high school gym.

To sponsor a student or to make a donation to the Fall River High School Band Fund, contact Band Director Hugo Castro or Principal Liz Kyle at 336-5515.

The band also needs items donated for the silent auction.

Mr. Castro and the band members appreciate the continued community support of the Fall River High School Music Department.

Results of 3-year RCD project at meeting

Directors of the Fall River Resource Conservation District will describe the results of a three-year restoration project in the Fall River Valley during a 7 p.m. meeting tonight at the RCD office in McArthur.

During the past three years, the Fall River RCD has been working to restore and protect the resources of the Fall River Valley.

The area, which is renowned for its scenic beauty and productive agriculture, its waterfowl and native trout fishery, has benefited from grant funds focused on improving the quality of the resource, according to District Manager Tim Weaver.

In 1996, the threat of sedimentation in the upper reaches of Fall River prompted the Central Valley Regional Water Quality Control Board to designate it as an impaired waterway.

A subsequent analysis and 1998 action plan identified projects aimed at restoring and protecting Fall River and its tributaries.

In March 1998 the Fall River RCD, backed by funds from the State Water Quality Control Board, launched the "Fall River Restoration Project."

"Overall goals of the project included the restoration and protection of streams and meadows, and control of bank erosion along upper Fall River," said Kari Rose, a Burney Elementary School teacher who was also the Education Coordinator for the Fall River RCD for two years.

Nearly five miles of livestock exclusion fences, off-site watering, and special cattle watering access ramps were installed along portions of Fall River and Bear Creek.

"Access ramps consist of a geotextile fabric and crushed cinder. By limiting livestock access to the water, these structures will help reduce bank erosion and sediment loss, Weaver said.

Another bank erosion control strategy being proposed involves the installation of muskrat "cut off walls."

Stevens to be sworn in, again, on Burney water board

BY MEG FOX

The Burney Water District plans to seat a familiar and sometimes controversial face as their new trustee.

Randy Stevens will be sworn in at the district's Nov. 13 meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m.

Stevens is currently working for the City of Shasta Lake in the Public Works Department, but is a former Burney Water District employee and also a former board member.

He has been appointed to replace Norm Dawirs, who resigned last month.

It was Dawirs who took Stevens' seat on the board in May 1999, when Stevens left a job with the school district to return to work for the Burney Water District.

Water District Manager Bill Suppa originally hired Stevens in 1986.

Under Marking's command, Stevens quit his job with the Burney Water District in March 1997 due to stress, reportedly due to problems working with Marking.

Stevens filed a claim against the water district and in October 1997 was awarded more than $25,000 in Workers Compensation and Unemployment Insurance benefits.

In January 1998, Stevens returned to the Burney Water District when he was appointed to serve on the water board after Carol Fry resigned.

Four months later the water board unanimously dismissed Marking and Suppa was once again hired for the post.

The water board planned to announce their decision to seat Stevens at a meeting scheduled Oct. 23, which was cancelled due to a lack of a quorum. As this was the second attempt to have an October meeting, Board President Jackie Young said they would wait until next month to meet.

BHS celebrates Sadie Hawkins Day and was remembered by others

On Nov. 2, the girls at Burney High School celebrated Sadie Hawkins Day, an event that's been around since 1938. Sadie Hawkins Day was the invention of Al Capp, the creator of the "Li'l Abner" cartoon strip.

In Capp's popular backwoods setting for Dogpatch, USA, it was the day when all the unmarried women could chase after a running bachelor. If they caught him, they could marry him.

Today the tradition calls for girls to invite a boy to the Sadie's Hawkins Dance, which always takes place in November.

Some community members remember dressing for their dances in outfits like Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner wore.

Today's teens are buying their dates a matching in-style T-shirt to wear and treating their dates to dinner.

But some aspects of the Sadie's Dance have not changed.

CAROLYN GARRIGUS

"What I remember most is how nervous we were to ask, even when we had boyfriends," said Carolyn Garrigus, the librarian at Burney High School.

HERB NOEL

It isn't just the girls who get butterflies in their stomachs. "I was real nervous, but after I got to dancing, I forgot about it," said Herb Noel, who is 92 and now lives at the Burney Annex. "The girls were the same. Some were as bashful as I was and some were rare'in to go," Noel said.

DAVID GLAZZARD

David Glazzard, 52, another Burney Annex resident, remembered his Sadie Hawkins Dance at Fall River High School, where the girls literally chased down a boy for a dance.

"We'd run, but sometimes we didn't make it," he said. "You were stuck and you'd just have to stay and dance."

He remembers how shy he felt at the time. "I was embarrassed. I was the most shy in my class and it took me years to get over it."

The girl who caught him "was a pretty fast runner," Glazzard said, laughing about it. "I tried to get away, but I had no choice."

GORDON THURSTON

Gordon Thurston, 65, of Burney, went to his first Sadie Hawkins Dance in Orinda in 1962 and remembers the DJ playing rock and roll music on the school stage.

"If boys didn't get asked, they went anyway and snuck in the back door," he said. "They would sit down and wait and most of the time they'd be out on the floor."

"The football players were always asked," he said.

Garrigus went to her first Sadie Hawkins Dance in 1970, when she was a sophomore at Burney High School.

"When I was a freshman I wasn't allowed to date, so I didn't even consider going," she said.

She and most of the other girls had boyfriends to invite.

"Back then it seemed like there was more stress to have a boyfriend," she said.

"We dressed up as if we were Li'l Abner characters and we wore cut-off shorts and peasant tops and took our shoes off when we got there," she said. "The guys wore jeans and flannel shirts."

VALERIE SMITH

Valerie Smith, of Burney, also remembers dressing in costume for Sadie Hawkins dances.

"The girls all looked like Daisy Mae and wore dresses cut out of burlap. The school gave prizes for the best costume," she said.

Challenge team wins 1st round

By MARY LOU SCHMIDT

What famous American poet wrote "O Captain, My Captain"? What biological substance speeds up reactions in plants and animals?

Which Leonard Bernstein musical was based on Shakespeare's play Romeo and Juliet? What is the name of Charles Lindburgh's plane in which he made the first trans-Atlantic solo flight?

The BHS Academic Challenge Team, which knew the answers to these questions and more, defeated the Foothill High School team in their first match this year at the KRCR studios in Redding Oct. 23.

Members of the team include co-captains and seniors Austin Rice and Chris Prigmore and juniors Kristen Churney, Joe Colby, and Rocky Torgrimson. BHS teachers Mary Lou and Ron Schmidt coach the team.

The academic tournament is a double round robin elimination involving 20 high schools in the tri-county area, with scholarship prizes donated by Redding area businesses. The team's next match will be announced later.

Find out answers to the questions above by watching the exciting winning match against Foothill High when it is aired this Sunday, November 17, on Channel 7R at 6:30 p.m.

New skilled nursing director at Mayers Memorial Hospital

BY MEG FOX

A woman with 30 years of experience in nursing, clinical and patient services, and administration has been hired as the new director of nursing for skilled nursing at Mayers Memorial Hospital and the Burney Annex.

Emily Davidson-Taylor moved to this area last month from Pocatello, Idaho, where she was vice-president of patient services with Bannock Regional Medical Center.

She will be working as part of a team with Peggy Masterston and Vera Traffanstedt, said Traffanstedt, who has been the director of nursing in skilled nursing since 2000 but can no longer work full time for health reasons.

"Emily will provide a higher level of management," Traffanstedt said, explaining the state Department of Licensing wanted more management present in the hospital.

Davidson-Taylor began her career in medicine on the East Coast, where she earned a Bachelors degree in health care from St. Joseph's College of Maine in Standish.

EMILY DAVIDSON-TAYLOR

She also has a Masters degree in management, with a concentration in business, from Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant. Originally from Baltimore, Md., Davidson-Taylor graduated from Baltimore's Sinai Hospital School of Nursing in 1968.

She stayed at the hospital for 10 years, starting as a surgical nurse and moving on to become the nurse manager in several units of 32 to 50 beds, caring primarily for patients in medical, oncology, rehab and psychology, she said.

She was hired by North Charles General Hospital in Baltimore and there progressed from a halftime supervisor/educator to the assistant director, associate director, and director of nursing to the vice-president of nursing.

"That hospital eventually merged with Wyman Park, a government facility that treated Department of Defense active and retired military and their families," she said.

The name was changed to Homewood Hospital with a north and south campus that became part of the Johns Hopkins Health System in Baltimore.

With the merger, Davidson-Taylor became the vice-president of clinical services, overseeing 19 departments.

In 1991, she said, her career changed when management decided they should close Homewood's south campus. "I was asked by the senior vice-president of Johns Hopkins Health Systems to stay on and disperse of all the assets."

"This was a five-story high rise that had properties on two and half city blocks, including a garage and a Catholic elementary school. "We had to dispose of every bed, every OR light, every desk, all the instruments, and we had to archive all the charts," she said.

She, another executive and a secretary worked alone in the empty hospital for two years until everything was sold, filed, or disposed of.

"It was depressing," she said.

Once the job was completed she worked for a year on special projects with the senior vice-president of finance.

"I was asked to coordinate information for numerous departments, including the billing department," she said.

"I listened in on telephone calls and monitored the routine questions to the billing department and we then revised the hospital bill to make it more understandable," she said.

In 1994, a recruiter contacted her with an offer from Bannock Regional Medical Center.

"I had been looking for another job and the recruiter said this was a nice place in a nice area."

She and her husband and son visited the area and she started work the next month as the vice-president of patient care services.

Her area covered acute nursing, as well as a 120-bed skilled nursing facility, infection control, urgent care, air ambulance, quality control and social work.

During her eight years in Pocatello, Davidson-Taylor lost her husband, who had been actively involved in the community. Her mother also recently died. And then she received more life-changing news.

In June, Bannock finalized its plans to merge with another hospital in Pocatello, she said.

"All administrative and department head staff had to re-apply for their jobs – and my job was eliminated."

She started searching again and found Mayers Memorial Hospital. "I really liked the people and the area," she said.

In addition to a new career that brings her back onto the floor of a busy hospital, Davidson-Taylor has other events to look forward to.

Her son, a chiropractor in Baltimore, is about to be married, and her daughter will earn her degree in nursing this year at Idaho State University and wants to start her nursing career at Mayers.

Last week, Davidson-Taylor was finishing her hospital orientation, relaxing at Riverview House by doing needlepoint and crochet, and making plans to find a new home big enough to accommodate her two dogs, who are anxious to leave Idaho, too.

Generosity & willingness to help

Editor:
The people of this area have always amazed me with their generosity and willingness to help and the Burney Elementary Schools PTA's Harvest Festival on October 27 was certainly no exception.

Amber Denny, Doree Harrington and Lenetta Harris did a fantastic job of organizing the festival and earned our PTA Volunteer of the Month Awards for the hard work and attention to detail that is required to put on a successful event.

Thanks to them, our newly re-formed PTA is off to a grand start.

Amber Denny, a senior at Burney High School orchestrated the festival for her senior project. She is a shining example of the quality of students at BHS and how valuable the senior project program can be to our community.

I am sure she owes us her first gray hairs! Amber, you earned them along with our gratitude and admiration.

Jerry and Denise Rice helped so much with the construction, repair and set-up of the games. We couldn't have done it without you two.

A special thank you to Holiday Market for the generous donation of hot dogs and buns for our concession. What a blessing that business has been to this community!

So many people unselfishly gave up their Sunday to lend a hand: from grandmothers to big sisters they manned the door, ran games, worked the concession, took pictures, helped set-up and cleaned up.

We had more than enough goodies for the cakewalk and candy for the kids. Thank you, everyone, for your priceless help!

To the parents who brought their darling children to the festival, thank you for your support. Your attendance gave us the inspiration and means to do great things for the children of our community.

Youth grantmakers selected from all across Shasta County

The Shasta Regional Community Foundation has selected 14 students from throughout Shasta County to participate in its Grants Advisory Board for Youth (GABY) program.

The youth range in age from 13 to 18. Three adult members also serve on the GABY board as a resource for the youth driven process. This is the first year of the program.

Across Shasta county, youth are preparing grant proposals for projects they want to conduct in their areas. The selected GABY participants will review those proposals and make funding decisions.

The GABY program will not only provide resource for youth wanting to complete positive projects in their neighborhoods or schools, but it will also provide the GABY board with a real education in philanthropy and working collaboratively with others.

GABY grant proposals will be youth written and supported. Grants will be made in the amount of $250 to $1,000 and support youth driven community service projects.

The deadline for applications is November 15. Proposal information and complete guidelines are available by calling the Community Foundation at 244-1219.

New books at the Fall River Library

BY PHYLLIS FUNK

Several brand new books hare recently been received by the Fall River Valley Library and are available to the public.

A book entitled "Handbook of Water Use and Conservation; Homes, Landscapes, Businesses, Industries, Farms" by Amy Vickers is such an important book now available for this area.

With the word "drought" now being used so often in California, it is a comprehensive and authoritative handbook on water uses and efficiency measures for drought response or long-term water shortage solutions.

The author is an engineer and president of an international consulting firm specializing in water conservation. Hopefully this book will be borrowed by many people in this community.

"Love is a 4 Legged Word" is another great book that is a story that will warm your heart, touch your soul, and make you believe in the individual's power to change things.

This book is a true story of a man who made his vision a reality and dramatically changed the pet care industry in America. You'll experience both the joy and sadness in this memorable memoir.

"Ghosts of the Northeast" is a collection of over 200 stories and 140 photos. Careful historical background is a major ingredient in each of the stories and the author shares the possibilities of what is lying beyond physical death.

"Ready, Set, Go! Synergy Fitness for Time-Crunched Adults is a fitness book for middle-aged baby boomers. It focuses on the natural re-energizing of our bodies growth hormone production, which is critical for anti-aging.

It takes into account all levels of fitness and non-fitness. It focuses on the intensity of exercise which is required to see result and in the importance of planning and timing. The guide takes a whole-body and a varied type-exercise approach to fitness.

"Discovering Washington Wines" is an indispensable guide to Washington's world-class premium wines.

It is consumer-friendly and it is filled with useful information including maps of major regions, illustrations, and a list of all wineries in Washington.

These are just a few of the books that are available to readers of the mountain area.

Opportunity opens for National Fire Plan grants

Sharon Heywood, Forest Supervisor of the Shasta-Trinity National Forest, announced the availability of two National Fire Plan grant programs designed to help reduce the risk of catastrophic wildfires.

The Community Protection grant program provides grants ranging from $10,000 to $200,000 for hazardous fuel reduction projects on non-National Forest lands adjacent to planned projects on National Forest System lands.

The National Fire Plan Economic Action grant program provides grants ranging from $10,000 to $75,000 for projects that will lead to economic use of woody materials removed during fuel reduction activities.

Eligible entities for both grant programs include counties, cities, state government, federally recognized tribes and non-profit organizations such as fire safe councils, resource conservation districts, and economic development districts.

Under the Community Protection program projects can include fuelbreak construction, mechanical treatment for fuels reduction, prescribed fire fuel reduction, purchase of chippers, etc.

Examples of projects selected for funding last year include: construction of a 20 mile shaded fuel break along Backbone Ridge—east of Redding; and construction of nearly 7 miles of shaded fuel break on the Bar 717 Ranch west of Hayfork.

National Fire Plan Economic Action grants can be used for development of fire safe councils, fuel reduction projects that deliver products to market, demonstration projects, technology transfer, market assessments and business plans.

Cozy Topeka a functional dream home

By Associated Designs

Looking at the Topeka, the word "magic" springs to mind. But it's actually quite real and functional. The steeply pitched gables and intricate detailing of this Gothic revival home are so fascinating you'll want to run your eyes over all of its various embellishments for a long time, just as guest designer Rodney Pfotenhauer intended.

With a compact 1000 square feet of living area, this home is well-suited to the needs of singles or small families. It also makes a delightful mother-in-law cottage, or vacation home.

Graceful turned posts support both porches. One shelters the front entry, and the other is on the side, accessed via the living room. Either porch is a great location for suspending an old-fashioned cushioned porch swing for summer use.

Entering, you step into the dining room, which is partially open to both the kitchen and the living room. A bathroom complete with shower nestles into an alcove just around the corner, convenient to all of the ground floor rooms.

A fireplace warms the vaulted living room, which is two stories high at its apex. Light spills in through one large multipaned window on the ground level, plus two on the upper level that fill most of the triangular wall spaces on either side of the chimney.

The remaining main floor room could be used as a bedroom, home office, hobby room, or whatever suits. Its boxed bay window can be built with window seats at both ends, or left open. It's a pleasant spot for a desk or sewing machine.

Laundry appliances are upstairs, along with the Topeka's master suite. Amenities include a spacious bathroom, walk-in closet, and cozy window seats.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Please specify the Topeka 42-012 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring more than 350 home plans is available for $15. For more information, call (800) 634-0123.
