FIRE DESTROYS LANDMARK

Town's namesake destroyed in Friday night blaze

BY MEG FOX

Fall River Mills resident Darrell Nussbaum turned off his television around 11 o'clock Friday night and was on his way to the shower when he stopped to admire his picture-window view of the town's historic three-story feed mill in the light of a full moon.

"I was struck by how pretty it was," said Nussbaum, who lives on Bridge Street across from the Fall River Feed Store.

Fifteen minutes later, he walked back into his front room, now oddly illuminated by a bright orange light, and saw that the feed store was totally engulfed in flames.

"I stayed at the window until 4:30 a.m. and watched the whole thing," he said. "You feel so helpless. All that water. I was amazed at how fast it went. It's so sad."

Fall River Mills Assistant Fire Chief Chuck Bethel was there within minutes and Fire Chief Grant Brown arrived moments later.

"Everyone got there quick, but it was fully engulfed. When I got into my pickup to go, I could see it from my house behind Sierra (Ray's) Market," Brown said.

About 40 firefighting volunteers from the Fall River Mills, McArthur, and the Soldier Mountain departments battled the blaze for hours and were still mopping up on Sunday.

The California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection also sent two engines – from Bieber and Johnson Park – for wildland protection and provided inmate crews from the Sugarpine Conservation camp.

Owners Bill and Betty Stoltenberg, who bought the feed store in 1967 from Bill's parents, Ed and Florence, were still dazed Monday by their loss.

They'd been going in to work there for 36 years.

"Bill got up this morning and went out and weeded the garden," his wife said. "He never weeds the garden."

Remarkably, records that Betty needs for her year-end fiscal report were salvaged from a metal file cabinet and her metal desk.

"They were soaked, smoked, and red-hot, but I can still read them," she said.

She found her accounts receivables in a desk drawer "all burnt and Firefighters battle fire that destroyed the historic Fall River Feed Store, the namesake mill that provided Fall River Mills with its early identity. The huge structure, one of the tallest in the area, was fully engulfed in flames when it was reported about 11:30 p.m. Friday. Fire departments from throughout the Intermountain area responded throughout the night and early Saturday.

Meeting held to curb fears of worried parents

BY MEG FOX

After a third child was diagnosed in Burney with meningococcal disease and after receiving hundreds of telephone calls from worried parents, Shasta County Public Health officials scheduled a community meeting Thursday in Burney.

While the disease is not easy to contract, a cluster of three cases is cause for concern.

"We're on the threshold of a community outbreak," Shasta County Health Officer Dr. Andrew Deckert told an audience of about 40 people, a mix of parents, health care and child care providers, who gathered at the Intermountain Community Center.

"The community needs to get vigorous about not sharing saliva," Deckert advised. "That's what will break this."

Health officials also advised the community to do a lot of hand-washing, watch for the symptoms, and seek medical care immediately if they are even slightly concerned.

"In a setting where meningitis is increasing, it's better to be safe than sorry. What's the price of a life?" Deckert said.

Brunner civil trial final arguments continue

Representatives from the Committee to Preserve and Restore Fall River Mills (CPR) were back in Shasta County Superior Court Tuesday at press time to hear the closing arguments in their lawsuit against commercial property owner Bill Brunner.

Brunner's attorney, Rodney Key of Redding, was scheduled to present his summation, followed by rebuttal from CPR's attorney James Reed, of Fall River Mills.

Judge James Ruggiero is then expected to hand over what he described as a complicated case to the jury for deliberation.

CPR filed the original complaint against Brunner and his wife Sally Voorheis, of Glenburn, on March

1, 2001 alleging that the couple had "unlawfully allowed their commercial properties in Fall River Mills to fall into a dilapidated, unsightly and dangerous state of disrepair" not out of neglect, but in a personal vendetta against a town "heavily dependent on tourism."

In Brunner's Oct 5, 2001 cross-complaint, he stated that CPR, a charitable trust, and the plaintiffs (Fall River Mills business owners Scott and Sandy Jensen, Terry Briggs, William Johnson, and Todd Brown) "have harassed us for the sole purpose of gaining possession of our property" and Brunner sought compensation for their expenses, stress and defamation.

The civil trial started May 21.

OBITUARIES

Kathleen Hollenbeak Teacher, 93

There will be a memorial service for longtime Fall River Valley resident and teacher Kathleen Hollenbeak at 2 p.m. June 29 at the Community Methodist Church in Fall River Mills.

Private family interment will be at the Pine Grove Cemetery in McArthur.

Mrs. Hollenbeak died on April 12, 2003 at her granddaughter’s residence in Napa. She was 93.

Because Mrs. Hollenbeak loved to garden, those attending her memorial are invited to bring bouquets from their gardens. Donations may be made to a charity of choice.

Mrs. Hollenbeak was preceded in death by her husband of 60 years, Byron, who died in 1992.

Born Sept. 28, 1909 in Anderson, Mrs. Hollenbeak was a graduate of Anderson Union High School.

She wanted to become a teacher and lived with an uncle in Oakland while attending college to earn her credentials.

She was graduated in 1930 from San Francisco State Teachers College. She later attended summer school and night classes to earn her bachelor’s degree.

She applied for a teaching vacancy at the one-room Wooden School in downtown McArthur and began her career teaching 40 students in the K-8th grades.

A stove in the middle of the room heated the school, which was located across from where Bruce Equipment is today.

Mrs. Hollenbeak taught in McArthur for two years before taking a job teaching four grades in a two-room school in Fall River Mills.

During this time, she met Byron Hollenbeak, whose ancestors came to the Fall River Valley in 1864, and they were married in Reno in 1933.

The couple moved to Glenburn where Mr. Hollenbeak’s family had a cattle and hay ranch.

Mrs. Hollenbeak returned to teaching in 1936 at the one-room Island School and taught there five years.

In 1941, she left teaching for five years to raise her first and only child, daughter Mikki.

When the teacher at the Dana School died suddenly, Mrs. Broughton returned once again to the school-

KATHLEEN HOLLENBEAK room, bringing Mikki with her. She later taught at the Glenburn School until 1948, when the schools were unified.

She continued teaching in McArthur and Fall River until her retirement in 1972. She had been a teacher for 34 years.

At this same time, the couple sold their ranch and Byron went to work on the Wes-Bac Ranch in Glenburn for 10 years.

Mrs. Hollenbeak- was a Past Worthy Matron of the North Star Chapter of the Eastern Star.

She served as president of the local California Teachers Association and was later a member of the Retired Teacher’s Association.

She and her husband were both active in the McArthur Grange #420 and were members for 50 years. They were also members of the Fort Crook Historical Society.

Her daughter Mikki said that it was because of the love and support of her family and the community that her mother was able to live independently in the Fall River Valley until four days before her 92nd birthday.

On Sept. 24, 2001, Mrs. Hollenbeak and her beloved orange and white “watch cat” went to live with her granddaughter Julie Hahklotubbe in Napa.

Mrs. Hahklotubbe and her husband, David, a gerontologist, own and operate an elder care facility.

Mrs. Hollenbeak is survived by her daughter, Mikki Broughton, a marriage and family therapist in Concord; grandson Marty Broughton of Ft. Collins, Colo.; granddaughter Julie of Napa; and great-grandchildren Garrett, Olivia and Alec Broughton and Ethan and Adeline Hahklotubbe.

Junior derby draws 99 fishermen

Some 99 students, ages 15 and younger, participated Saturday in the eighth annual Junior Fishing Derby at the Ash Creek Wildlife area in Big Valley. Sponsored by the Pit River Rod and Gun Club, the event also drew nearly 150 more as spectators. Every child was awarded a prize, but new bicycles were presented to Kacey Putnam and Jason BonJour for catching the biggest fish in the girl (12 ounces) and boy (13 ounces) categories respectively. The Department of Fish and Game planted 400 pounds of fish for the derby the previous day.

Burney church dedicating building to Kaupangers

Delores Kaupanger, of Burney, and her late husband, Earl Kaupanger, were honored Sunday by the Burney Presbyterian Church, which dedicated the Christian Education Building in their name.

The Kaupanger's were married in Reno on June 6, 1942 and Sunday's dedication also commemorated their wedding anniversary.

Earl Kaupanger, who died in January 1994, "was the rickshaw puller and the driving force in getting the education wing built and my Mom was also very much a part of it," said their daughter, Claudia Woods, of Burney.

In the 1960's, the Burney Presbyterian Church had what Woods said was a huge congregation, with lots of families with young kids in Sunday School, including Claudia and her four brothers.

"We were bursting at the seams and needed more room," she said.

Her father, who was then the Sunday School superintendent, president of the church board of directors, and a church elder, and her mother, the kindergarten leader and a church deacon, were among those who worked to have the 4,000-square-foot addition built.

The groundbreaking ceremony was on Aug. 27, 1967, with Jerry Zoll, Bill Raibley, and Wally Hilliard taking part in the Turning the Earth ceremony.

Earl Kaupanger presented the keys to the new building when it was dedicated May 19, 1968. The new, $60,000 wing included four schoolrooms, a nursery, bathrooms, a study, and the Fireside Room with a fireplace built with local stone

For several years the Play 'n' Preschool met in the building. More recently the space is used for church functions, as well as for community service meetings.

Burney Blue Skies program cancelled 'due to abuse'

BY MEG FOX

Blue Skies for Burney has been cancelled.

After a little more than one month in operation, the green waste-recycling program is over, according to Danielle Cagan, public relations consultant for Covanta Energy.

"The abuse was much worse than we expected," she said.

Rather than burning yard waste and sending smoke into Burney's clear blue sky, community members were invited to bring their pine needles, grass clippings, leaves, and other green waste to Burney Disposal's transfer station at $2 per truckload.

From there the waste was to be periodically transferred to the Burney Mountain Power plant, ground up, and used for fuel to create renewable energy.

Since the program started May 1, the transfer station received about three tons of green waste — along with sheets of linoleum, rocks, cinder blocks, and other garbage hidden under the acceptable piles of waste.

"Those non-waste items could seriously damage the equipment or put us out of compliance for a permit," Cagan said.

"Needless to say we are very disappointed and sorry that a small group of people ruined the program for everyone."

disease contained.

But on June 9, just days after the first two patients had been released from Mercy Medical Center, a Burney first grader was diagnosed with the disease and airlifted to a Redding hospital.

Donnell Ewert, deputy director for Shasta County Public Health, said it might be helpful that school is now over for summer, though school may not be where the disease was transmitted.

"We are not sure where transmission happened and we may never know," he said.

A mother in the audience asked if the community was safe if there is no outbreak in the next 10 days.

"No," said Ewert, "When could we feel safe?" she asked.

"We're never safe from germs at any time. Germs have figured out how to survive among us very well," he said.

However, the community can do a lot to help prevent further outbreaks.

Those most at risk are people who have had direct and close contact with a patient, such as living with them in the same household.

Also at risk are those who have had intimate contact, such as kissing on the mouth or sharing soda cans and bottles, cigarettes, eating utensils, food items, or lip balms with a known — or even an unknown — infected person.

About one in five people carry the virus in the back of their nose and throat, especially in the winter, and can pass it on for as long as nine months even though they appear healthy the entire time and have no symptoms.

Even then, the risk factor for getting the disease is 1 in 500 people, said Shasta County Public Health Nurse David Moeschler of the Burney office. "It's not easily transmitted."

"It's a little bit of a mystery why some get it and some don't," said Deckert.

Others at higher risk are children and workers in the same day-care setting as a patient, and anyone who had recent, close contact since the onset of the patient's symptoms.

Young people ages 15 to 25, especially those in a boyfriend-girlfriend relationship, and people over age 65 are also generally at increased risk.

There is also an increased risk for those who use tobacco or who are around second-hand smoke, as smoke irritates nasal passages, according to health officials.

Living in crowded areas, such as jails or military barracks, puts people at risk.

Having casual social contact or being in the same school or work place is less of a risk.

The disease is not spread through the air, like the measles virus, and it does not linger long on surfaces.

Once exposed, people usually become ill within three to four days, although it can take as long as 14 days.

Symptoms of meningococcal disease can develop rapidly over a few hours or gradually within one to two days.

Symptoms can appear all at once or progressively and include an extreme headache, a painful, stiff neck, and a high fever.

Ewert said the Burney children had fevers of 104-degrees.

Other symptoms include nausea, vomiting, confusion and extreme lethargy.

Another form of bacterial meningitis — and patients can have both or either one — infects the blood.

In this case, patients in this case develop a red, spidery-like rash under their skin.

If untreated, the red splotches get bigger and become multiple areas of obvious bleeding under the skin surface, like fresh bruises.

"It can move up the body in a few minutes," said Moeschler, "and the body can go into shock and shut down."

The spots or bruises do not turn white when pressed.

Early diagnosis and treatment is extremely important as delays can result in death, amputations, or long-term disabilities such as deafness.

"If you have any symptoms, get in the car and go," said Deckert.

Symptoms for bacterial meningitis are the same as for the non-contagious viral meningitis and even the flu.

But at this time in this community, health officials said it is much better to be safe than sorry.

"Doctors do not want to wait to (run tests) to see if it's viral or bacterial. They're going to start you on antibiotics because if they wait and it's bacterial, they could lose you as a patient," Moeschler said.

Ewert advised the community to work in partnership with their physicians in narrowing down information to reach a correct diagnosis.

"Fever and headache could be a lot of different diseases," he said.

Only parents would know if their child had had contact with a patient or was sleeping more than normal. "No one will ever watch your kid like you do," he said.

He also advised parents to watch for a progression of the various symptoms "and don't be ashamed to go back (to a doctor)."

There is no preventive vaccine for the Group B meningococcal disease that has occurred in Burney and officials said that preventive antibiotics for entire communities don't work.

Instead, Deckert stressed taking the symptoms seriously and "get vigorous about not sharing saliva."

In addition, antibiotics are not 100 percent effective in every individual, so that those who have been treated and have symptoms should also immediately seek medical care.

Some people have undesirable side effects after taking the antibiotics.

People are also still at risk once they've finished treatment. "People commonly pick up and carry the meningococcal bacteria again by getting recolonized by someone else."

Like other bacteria, meningococcal becomes resistant to antibiotics "pretty quickly."

The community had many more questions for public health officials.

One mother asked if she should go ahead with plans to have 30 guests for her young son's birthday party.

Deckert said when there have been outbreaks in communities, "closing the schools and canceling church picnics has not worked in stopping the outbreaks."

He also said that 30 people together anywhere is a risk because "some percentage of them will have meningococcal in their throat"

With a group of mostly 2- to 10-year-olds, "I'd be a little careful," he said. "The younger they are the more likely they are to exchange saliva."

Another mother said that her child was among the kindergartners who had been given antibiotics and she wanted to know if her child should be treated again if he had additional close contact after treatment.

"If saliva was shared a second time, yes, you should get treatment," Deckert said. "And, yes, it can help your child and would decrease the risk."

Another mother wanted to know if the community swimming pool was safe at this time.

Deckert said he believed it was, especially due to the dilution factor and chlorine treatment.

A father asked about using drinking fountains at the school and Deckert said he didn't have a lot of information, but that drinking fountain use does not come up as an increased risk.

Burney Elementary School and the Intermountain Community Center did switch to using individual drinking cups, however.

Another man asked about the use of a shared chalice during church communion.

While he had no specific answer, Deckert said that the warnings about sharing bottles and glasses are more of a marker of a relationship than warnings about the germs that lurk there.

"It's more than a germ on a cup," he said. "It's an indication that people spend time together and feel comfortable enough with each other to share water bottles."

"FIX-UPS" THAT WILL HELP YOUR HOME SELL

Your home should look great when it goes on the market. When you are ready to list your home, I recommend that you go through each room with a critical eye. What should you look for? Start with the ceiling; look for any cracks or water stains, then inspect the condition of the paint and wallpaper. Make sure that the windows are clean and window treatments are attractive. All of the closets and storage spaces should be neat and organized (a cluttered closet looks smaller!). If the rooms seem cluttered with too much furniture, you can create a more spacious look by storing your 'overflow'. A well maintained house tends to sell much quicker than one where buyers must use a lot of imagination. The condition of your house will help to determine the selling price; the better the house looks, the better your chances of selling it for top dollar. I can help you identify the repairs and cleaning what will increase your home's marketability.

Science Olympiad winners compete at state finals

Two of Fall River Junior-Senior High School's Science Olympiad teams qualified for the 2003 NorCal Science Olympiad State finals at the College of the Sequoias in Visalia.

Science Olympiad tournaments are inter-scholastic competitions that consist of a series of 32 individual and team events that encourage learning in biology, earth science, chemistry, physics, problem solving and technology.

The tournaments are held on local, state and national levels and science students prepare throughout the school year to compete.

The competition included B-level events for students in the seventh through ninth grades and C-level events for those in the ninth through twelfth grades.

Fall River entered two B-teams (Blue and Gold) and one C-team in the Regional Science Olympiad competition at Shasta College.

Both the C-team and the B-level Gold team earned third place positions to qualify for the state finals. The B-level Blue team earned a fourth place.

"Their hard work paid off," said Blue B-team coach and science teacher Deborah Marcum.

"Students prepared for two or as many as four events prior to the competition.

They met, after school, with individuals who helped them build, study, or prepare," she said.

The competition included, written tests, identification, labs, construction, and the testing of pre-made structures.

Tom Jones was the coach for the Gold B-level team and the team members are George Baltzer, Kenny McArthur, John McArthur, Esther Dolman, Kelsey Sloat, Hannah Moyer, Tera Strickland, Rebecca Anderson and Christine Sahlin.

Team members on Marcum's Blue B-level team are Bliss Bidwell, Jimmy Anderson, Chris Garner, Holly Murphy, Caitlin Royse, Emily Estes, Lydia McDemos, Michelle Vaughn, Jenna Shuler, Aubrey Shafer and Kimberly Royce.

Barbara Sugaya-Jones is the C-level coach and the team members are Colin Corr, Max Scott, Cody Jacobson, Amanda Gonzales, Ashley Overton, John Morris, Brittany Shelton, Katie Camarata, Billie Waltz, Nicole Gerow, Mimi Brown, Keegan Moyer, Tanner Parton, and Jessica Pooler.

B-team medal winners are:

First place Medals – Hannah Moyer, John McArthur and Kenny McArthur for Experimental Design.

Second Place Medals - Esther Dolman & Kelsey Sloat, Balloon Race; Hannah Moyer and Tera Strickland, Can't Judge a Powder; Emily Estes and Caitlin Royse, Dynamic Planet; Jimmy Anderson and Chris Garner, Mission Possible.

Third Place Medals - Esther Dolman & Kelsey Sloat, Feathered Frenzy; Kenny McArthur and John McArthur, Reach for the Stars; George Baltzer, Science Crime Busters, Hannah Moyer and Tera Strickland, Science Fitness; Rebecca Anderson and Christina Sahlin, Write It Do It; Jenna Shuler, Fossils and George Baltzer, Mission Possible.

C-team medal winners were:

First Place Medal - Max Scott, Robot Ramble.

Second Place Medals - Katie Camarata and Billie Waltz, Chemistry Lab, Katie Camarata and Mimi Brown, Experimental Design, Billie Waltz and Nicole Gerow, Reach for the Stars; and Tanner Parton and Colin Corr, Write It Do It.

Third Place Medals - Jessica Pooler and Brittany Shelton, Feathered Frenzy; John Morris and Keegan Moyer, Fossils; Cody Jacobson and Nicole Gerow, Mission Possible; Max Scott and Mimi Brown, Qualitative Analysis.

Organizers of the Science Olympiad say that while some of the events are based on individual achievement, they all involve teamwork, group planning and cooperation. "That is the real essence of The Science Olympiad."

As an "alternative to the 'isolated scientist' stereotype the Olympiad reminds students that science can be fun, exciting and challenging all at the same time."

New hospital opens for Susanville; more beds

Banner Health Systems has opened its new $6 million hospital in Susanville, the 38-bed Lassen Banner Medical Center.

The new facility replaces the historic 28-bed Lassen Community Hospital, built in 1822.

Banner Health donated the hospital to the Lassen College Foundation, which reportedly plans to use it for its nursing program and student housing.

The hospital also had a

31-bed long term care facility that was built in 1916.

Banner closed that facility and transferred its patients to other long-term care centers, including Mayers Memorial Hospital's long-term care in Burney and Fall River Mills.

The State Department of Health Services approved the Lassen Banner Medical Center license April 23 and patients were transported to their new beds May 1.

In addition to having 10 more beds, Chief Administrative Officer Dave Anderson said they have expanded the birthing facility and have a now state-of-the art radiology department, offering CT scanning and magnetic resonance scanning.

The center plans to add a nuclear medicine program later this year.

Banner Health Systems owns or manages 27 hospitals in 12 western states.

School district taken off county's qualified list – but warned to watch every step

BY MEG FOX

For the first time in more than a year, the Fall River JUSD received a "positive" certification from the Shasta County Office of Education, rather than "qualified" on its financial status.

For the district's accounting office this means one less financial report to prepare and for the district itself it means they're on steady financial ground – for now.

"You should be okay for this year and the next two years," Julie Tirado, director of fiscal services for the county Office of Education, told the trustees at their meeting in Burney.

"It looks like you are deficit spending, but not spending, and that's good," she said.

While positive certification sounds better than qualified, it basically means that the district has presented an acceptable budget plan for the next three years and is not expected "to go in the hole – but at any time you can," Tirado said.

There are only two other qualified districts in Shasta County.

Getting rid of the qualified status has been a painful process that's resulted in cuts to programs, lost jobs, wage reductions, and scrimping on supplies and it's only expected to get worse.

The district presented its third interim report with total revenues of $11.1 million and projected expenditures of $11.2 million.

The district is overspending by about $215,000, but expects to balance June 30 with funds from the reserve, while still maintaining a 3.5 percent reserve.

The district's multi-year projections show declining ending balances for 2003-2004 and 2004 through 2005," according to district Budget Analyst Teresea Spooner.

"Incorporated in each of these years is Gov. Gray Davis's 2.15 percent proposed cut to our revenue limit and a decrease of 12.01 percent compounded to our state categorical program revenues," she said.

And it could all change at any moment and more likely than not for the worst.

"The state will be out of cash in July and Wall Street won't lend any more money," Tirado said. "The finances in the State of California are not good."

There is also no state COLA projected for 2004-2005 and there might even be more mid-year cuts.

"Isn't it getting kind of late for mid-year cuts?" asked trustee Teri Vigil.

It is, Tirado said, but there are still outstanding funds that would normally have been paid by now. "It makes you start wondering if that's a potential cut," she said.

Tirado said she would still keep a close watch on the district, as she has seen financially stable school districts fall apart in a matter of months. "It happened so fast it was scary," she said.

In other business, the school board:

- Announced after closed session the expulsion of two high school students to the community day schools in Burney and Fall River for one year;

- Received a request for a two-year leave of absence, but referred it the Fall River education Association as it falls outside the contract for personal leave

- Received a request for early retirement from a confidential staff member

- Heard that, to date, 42 students have registered for kindergarten in Burney and 28 have registered at Fall River Elementary for the 2003-2004 school year.

Free Wednesday night movies continue at Burney Library

The Burney Library's free summer movie festival continues tonight with the 7 p.m. showing of the 1927 silent film, Sunrise.

Together with Seventh Heaven, an excerpt of which will also be shown, Sunrise earned Janet Gaynor the first-ever "Best Actress" Academy Award.

The theme this summer is, "75 Years of Oscar: A Tribute to the Academy Awards," and tonight's movie also won awards for Best Cinematography and Most Artistic Quality of Production.

Host David Shepard of Hat Creek describes the picture as a "film of infinite imagination in which a country man is seduced by a city vamp. To be with her, he plans to drown his Madonna-like wife, but at the critical moment regains his senses."

According to one reviewer, Sunrise, directed by F. W. Murnau, is "considered by many to be the finest silent film ever made by a Hollywood studio and represents the art of the wordless cinema at its zenith."

Friends of the Intermountain Libraries, Inc. sponsor the free showings. For a complete list of what's to come, stop by the library at 37038 Siskiyou Street or call 335-4317.

The Peace Garden State

North Dakota From A to Z

Agriculture is the top industry. Farms and ranches cover almost 90 percent of the land. Food processing and the manufacture of farm equipment are also important.

The first known European in the area was Pierre Gaultier de Varennes, Sieur de la Verendrye. He was seeking a river route to the Pacific Ocean.

France, Great Britain and Spain all claimed parts of the area at times. The United States bought most of it from France in 1803, as part of the Louisiana Purchase. In 1818, the U.S. gained the northeastern part through a treaty with Great Britain.

Fur traders were the main European visitors until Meriwether Lewis and William Clark led their expedition to the area in 1804. It became a state in 1889.

It is the 47th most-populated state, with about 640,000 people.

President Theodore Roosevelt spent much time in the beautiful, lonely Badlands, where he had two ranches. This national park in the area is now named after him. He said: "I never would have been president if it had not been for my experiences in North Dakota."

The American elm is the state tree.

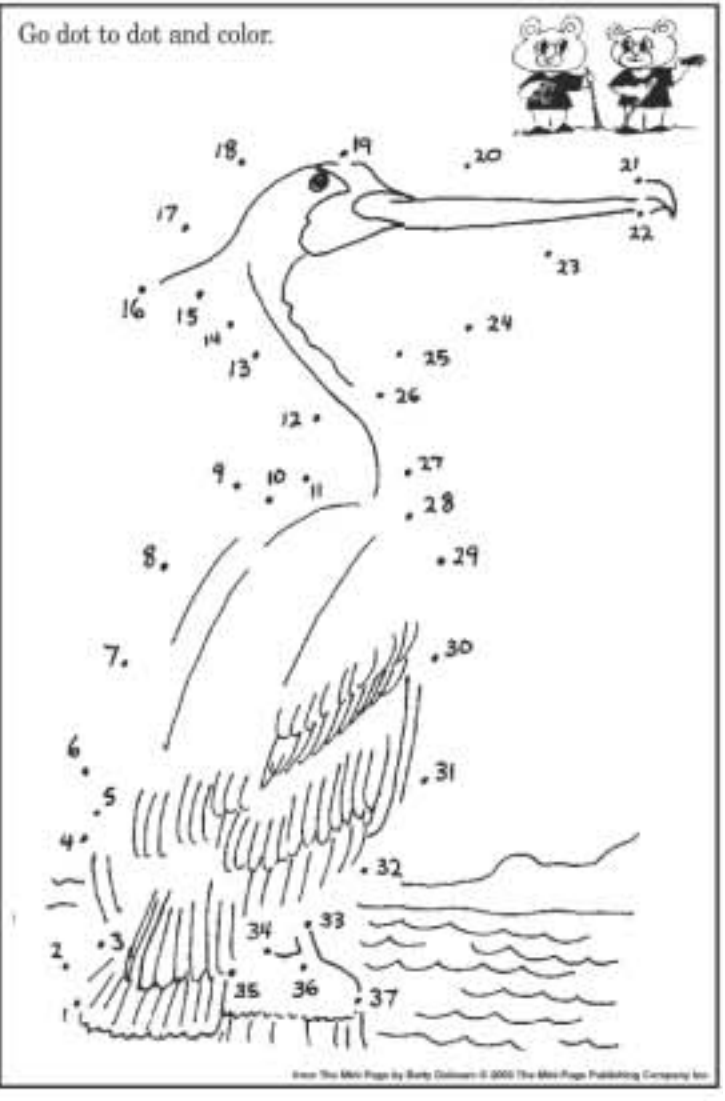

Bismarck, with about 55,000 people, is the capital. Its 19-story capitol building is called the "skyscraper on the prairie."

The Corps of Discovery, under the command of Lewis and Clark, built Fort Mandan near today's Washburn, where they wintered in 1804-1805. They returned to the state in 1806 on their journey home.

The Enchanted Highway near Gladstone has some of the world's biggest metal sculptures, including the "World's Largest Tin Family" and "Grasshoppers in the Field."

Fargo is the largest city, with about 90,600 people.

Colorful Corn Salad

You will want an adult's help with chopping the vegetables in this recipe.

You'll need:

- 2 (16-ounce) packages frozen sweet corn kernels, thawed
- 4 green onions, chopped
- 1 red pepper, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1/4 cup white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon sugar

What to do:

1. In a large bowl, combine corn, onions and peppers.
2. In another bowl, combine vinegar, olive oil, salt, lemon juice and sugar for the dressing.
3. Pour dressing over corn mixture. Mix well.
4. Place in refrigerator until ready to serve. Serves 8.

Goldie Goodsport's Report

Supersport: Annika Sorenstam

Height: 5-8 Born: Stockholm, Sweden Residence: Incline Village, Fla.

Put a golf club in Annika Sorenstam's hand and she turns into Wonder Woman.

In 2002, the smooth-swinging Swede dominated the Ladies Professional Tour. She played in 23 tournaments, won 11 and finished in the top ten 20 times. Since turning pro in 1994, Annika has won 43 LPGA titles.

Annika, who started playing golf at age 12, is one of the longest and most accurate players off the tee. In fact, she's so good that she was invited to play in a men's PGA tournament. She practices hard, usually about four to six hours per day when she's not competing in a tournament.

Besides golf, Annika's interests include snow-skiing, music and gourmet cooking. Last summer she worked several days per week in the kitchen at Lake Nona Country Club in Florida.

Her competitors probably wish she would spend more time in the kitchen and less on the course. That's because she's so hard to beat!

Meet Hilary Duff

Fifteen-year-old Hilary Duff is a singer, an actress, and a star in the making. Her biggest claim to fame is her own TV show, "Lizzie McGuire" on the Disney channel.

Born on Sept. 28, 1987, she started her acting career when she was only 6 years old, touring in a production of "The Nutcracker."

Since then, she has been in four movies, including "The Lizzie McGuire Movie" and "Agent Cody Banks." She has also been a guest star on the TV series "Chicago Hope." And she was nominated as Favorite Television Actress for Nickelodeon's 16th-annual Kids' Choice Awards.

Hilary has a talent for singing, too. She has released two albums.

Her family has homes in both Los Angeles and Houston. She lives with her parents, her sister and two dogs. In her spare time, she likes swimming, tumbling and in-line skating.

MIGHTY FUNNY'S Mini Jokes

All the following jokes have something in common. Can you guess the common theme or category?

Randall: What did Sir Lancelot wear to bed?

Donny: A knight-gown!

Sarah: What happens when you put a light bulb in a suit of armor?

Dennis: You have a knight light!

Angela: Why do we sometimes call the Middle Ages the Dark Ages?

Quentin: Because there were too many knights!

More About North Dakota

The Flickertail State is one nickname, named for the flickertail squirrel that romps through the state.

Forests cover about 1 percent of the state.

Millions of snow Geese stop on their way south for the winter. Millions of ducks nest there.

At Medicine Hole cave near Killdeer, an eerie fog flows from the opening. Indian legends say that the first people and animals came out of this cave.

The International Peace Garden in Dunseith honors the peace between the U.S. and Canada. It was built on the international boundary running between North Dakota and Manitoba Province in Canada. Peace Garden visitors can stand with one foot in the United States and one foot in Canada.

Jamestown features the National Buffalo Museum. Visitors can watch a live herd and see White Cloud, a rare all-white, or albino, buffalo, considered sacred to Native Americans.

Knife River Indian Villages National Historic Site is where Lewis and Clark got to know Sacagawea and her husband, Charbonneau. It features remains of three Indian villages.

Lewis and Clark spent more consecutive days in North Dakota than in any other state.

The Missouri River provides power and irrigation water for much of the state. The Red River flows along the border between Minnesota and North Dakota.

More National wildlife refuges, 63, are in this state than in any other.

Oil and lignite coal are top resources. About two-thirds of the nation's supply of lignite coal is there. It is one of the biggest areas of solid fuel in one place in the world. Sand, gravel and clay are also important resources.

The wild Prairie rose is the state flower.

Quiet outdoor sports attract many to the area. Walleye, perch, northern pike, trout, salmon, catfish and bass are top catches.

A spot outside Rugby is the geographical center of North America.

Strasburg is the birthplace of famous bandleader Lawrence Welk. The sod house where he was born in 1903 is open to visitors.

Next week The Mini Page is about summer vacation choices.

Turtle Lake features the USA National Championship Turtle Races.

Fort Union Trading Post National Historic Site is where John Jacob Astor's American Fur Co. built the largest fur trading post on the upper Missouri River, which operated from 1828 to 1867.

Valley City is the site of Medicine Wheel Park, which features a replica of a Native American stone calendar. Its 28 spokes were used to track the movement of the moon.

The Western meadowlark is the state bird.

Called Sioux by their enemies, the Lakota, or Dakota, people gave the state its name. "Dakota" means allies or friends. The Yanktonai, Mandan, Hidatsa, Arikara, Assiniboiné and Cheyenne also lived in the area.

The average Yearly temperature is 37 degrees in the northeast and 43 degrees in the south. It has mild summers and frigid winters.

BonanZa® farms were large wheat farms in the fertile Red River Valley. In the late 1800s they made farmers huge profits. More durum wheat (used to make pasta), spring wheat, barley, sunflowers, dry edible beans, pinto beans, canola and flaxseed are grown in North Dakota than in any other state. Beef and dairy cattle are important. Honey is a top product. "A bonanza is something that brings great wealth."

The remains of Fall River Feed Store were still smouldering Saturday afternoon following the late Friday night fire that destroyed the historic structure. At right, a firefighter is silhouetted against a backdrop of flames that could be seen as far west as Hat Two powerhouse.

crispy” and the checkbook for the business. “I can pay our bills and send out our bills and then that’s it.”

She also recovered the oldest existing record book for the mill. The ledger contains the signatures of the local farmers, shareholders who started a grain co-op at the mill during the 1920s.

Betty asked the community members who stopped by the burnt site Sunday to sign the book as a fitting last chapter.

The Stoltenbergs said they are touched by the community members who helped during the fire and Chief Brown said he’s grateful, too.

Hat Creek Construction loaned them an excavator that Todd Reynolds operated for hours. Carol Brown brought food and drinks for everyone on the fire. The Fall River Hotel also brought food and drinks and took hamburger orders from the inmate crew. Even Betty’s sister drove over from Mt. Shasta with food and water.

In spite of all the community’s good will, at least one teenage boy has reportedly been arrested with breaking into the Stoltenbergs tool shed behind the feed store after the fire and stealing the last of their equipment.

“They kicked in the door and dumped our tools over the side of the hill,” Betty said. “They also went through the burnt office, but there was nothing in there.”

Chief Brown and CDF Battalion Chief Tim McCammon said they don’t know how the fire started and probably never will, though McCammon believes it was electrical.

The store had reportedly been having trouble with a 50 HP electric motor than ran the pellet mill. There was also a lot of combustible grain dust.

The Fall River Feed Store was minimally insured, perhaps because it was mostly constructed of wood.

“The wood walls were five-and-a-half inches thick and the building was divided into eight silos, all two-by-six construction,” McCammon said. “It was a very strong building.”

McCammon placed an initial loss at $500,000 “though it’s probably more,” he said.

Betty said they did about $1 million in business and sold 200 tons of feed a month.

“But the historical value is priceless,” she said.

Old-timers in Fall River Mills weren’t sure Monday when the flour mill for which the town was named was first built.

According to Grace Brown of Fall River Mills, in 1926 her uncle, Grover Brown, either rebuilt or remodeled the mill at the site overlooking the Pit River.

“Originally there was a millstone that ground the grain and it was either horse-drawn or run by water from Fall River,” Brown said.

Grover Brown turned the structure into a flour mill.

“There were flour-making machines on each of the three floors and the flour was bagged and sold throughout Northern California and Oregon.

“A lot of bakeries used that flour. And the flour sacks made awfully good underwear, too,” she said.

Local farmers stored their grains in bins at the Fall River mill and they mixed the grain varieties to produce different kinds of flour, Brown said.

The mill’s innovative owners, Dee (Diederick Frederick) Knoch and Norris Bethel, later organized a co-operative milling company for the grain growers, thought to be the first of its kind.

The last flour miller at the site was a Mr. Cornforth. “Walter, maybe was his name,” said Brown, trying to recall the mill’s history.

“He and his wife, Mary, ran the mill through World War II. My brother, Hiram Brown, drove truck for them when he was in high school and hauled the flour,” she said.

The Cornforths were Seventh-day Adventists, whose Sabbath is on Saturday.

“They were always cautioning my brother to drive slow, except on Friday night, and then they wanted him to drive like a bat out of hell so they could get home in time,” Brown laughed.

At left is all that remains Saturday of the front office and store of Fall River Feed. Below is a sketch used as part of a logo for the business.

The Cornforths accompanied Hiram on the route. “They always went along to negotiate the cash sale. They never billed anyone.”

After the Cornforths returned to their home in Minnesota, the mill was run by the farmers’ cooperative.

“They removed the flour and made it a feed processing mill. They bought grain and produced custom-made feed – just as the Stoltenbergs were doing to this day – until the fire,” said Brown.

In the 1950s, Grace herself worked at the co-op as secretary, treasurer, clerk, and salesperson under manager Dale Ray.

Even in those days, insurance agents were wary of the wooden building.

“We had insurance on that building and paid $1,000 every three months. Even now that’s a lot,” she said.

“An insurance inspector came out one time and told us if anyone yelled ‘Fire!’ to get the hell out and don’t look back.

The building was so volatile with all that grain dust,” Brown said.

Betty Stoltenberg isn’t sure what will happen next, but she and Bill have already taken steps to help the local kids who need the feed for their 4-H projects.

“We’re going to try and make feed for the kids so they can get through the Fair (over Labor Day weekend in McArthur),” she said.

In addition to salvaging what they could Monday and trying to cope with the loss, the Stoltenbergs were also thinking about their customers and preparing feed for the 4-H’ers from the safely stored premix.

“The guys are trying to remember the formulas for the steer mix, the lamb mix and the hog mix,” she said. “Then we’ll haul it to McArthur Farm Supply so it will be available for the kids.”

Team splits doubleheader with Alturas

BY VINCE WALL
Team Manager

On one of the hottest days in memory, the Burney Junior League Diamondbacks beat the Alturas Giants, 6-1, in their morning double-header in Burney.

The Diamondbacks gave up a run in the top of the first and then resorted to another seven innings of stingy defense to hold the Giants to a lone run.

The Giants continually put men in scoring position, often with runners on second and third, and were denied the chance to score.

Consistent singles and doubles were the trademark of the Diamondback offense, with runs being scored throughout the game.

Chris Wall played a solid defensive game at first and Ryan Rhodes hit the ball hard twice to sustain rallies.

Daniel Barba went six innings, striking out four with Vince Pellegrino on in relief.

In the afternoon game, the Giants turned the tables on the Diamondbacks with a 5-4 win in a five-inning game.

The Giants scored two in the top of the first and the D-Backs tied it in the bottom of the 5th.

The Giants came out in what was now an extra inning game and scored three in the top of the 6th.

The D-Backs showed their competitive spirit by scoring two runs in the bottom of the 6th, highlighted by Cooper Allison driving a triple into the gap in left-center, with two outs.

The game ended with the tying run on third.

Vince Pellegrino went the distance fanning six Giants. Willie Lyons hit a solid double and threw a man out at third with a bullet throw from centerfield.

In an attempt to steal second, a Redding Phillies player found himself caught between Channel Cats Patrick Williams, at right, and Blake Oney in their June 8 double-header clash in McArthur. The Channel Cats won both games, 9-5 and 11-10.

Channel Cats win 3 of 4 games

The Pit River Channel Cats had double-headers against other American Legion teams in Shasta Lake and Weed last week and won three of their four games.

Lots of fathers turned out to watch their sons play on Father's Day Sunday against the Siskiyou Spirits in Weed.

After losing the first game, 8-3, the Channel Cats surfaced and pounded the ball for a 22-9 win in the second game.

"Everyone got multiple hits and they all hit real well," said Manager Rob Senko.

There was even a moment of amazement when batter Chris Angel hit and broke the aluminum bat.

Rob Senko started on the mound and was relieved by Patrick Williams until Adam Vanover took over.

"He was remarkable," said Senko. "He held them down with his curve ball and change up."

On Saturday, the Channel Cats met the Shasta Lake Bass for two wins, 9-6 in the first game and 7-4 in the second.

Mitch Holscher pitched "a heck of a game" for the first win. At bat Blake Oney was 3-for-4 and Luke Magnuson was 2-for-4.

Larry Holscher pitched the first three innings with seven strikeouts before Chris Angel came in to relieve him. Pat Williams closed the game.

"Those are our top pitchers and they all did real well," said Senko.

Rob Senko and Luke Magnuson were both 2-for-3 at the plate.

The Channel Cats take on the Rattlers tonight at Foothill

High School with a double header that starts at 4 p.m. On Friday they meet a team from Susanville in Bieber for another double-header.

Diamondbacks add 2 more wins to record

BY VINCE WALL
Team Manager

The Burney Diamondbacks traveled to Bieber June 10 to play the Big Valley Cardinals and fans were treated to an offense show with 29 runs scored in a 20-9 win for the D-backs.

Both sides pounded out hit after hit, with Ryan Rhodes and Derek Harrington each collecting triples.

Tyler Roads went six and one-third innings, with Harrington closing it for the last two outs.

The same two teams met again in Bieber June 14 when they played a close game with Big Valley holding the lead for most of the game.

The D-backs entered the top of the seventh trailing 6-5.

Playing conservatively, James Jarrell laid down a perfect bunt to move the tying run to second.

The D-backs tied the game one batter later and then proceeded to load the bases.

Ryan Rhoades hit another triple to give the D-backs three more runs and allowed them to win the game with a score of 9-6.

Pitchers for the D-backs consisted of a "bullpen by committee" with Derek Harrington, Trevor Newport, Ryan Rhodes, and Daniel Barba all contributing to the team effort.

Shortstop chosen to play ball in Australia

BY MEG FOX

Alfred Olvera III, shortstop for Fall River High School's varsity baseball team, is one of four teenagers selected to represent the U.S. in the 2003 International Baseball Tournament taking place July 5-15 in Australia.

Olvera, 17, will be a senior at Fall River High in the fall. He began playing ball about nine years ago in Little League and his goal is to move on the Major Leagues. "I always thought it would be easy to make it in baseball," he said. "It's fun and I'm good at it."

He also plays basketball for Fall River and maintains a 3.5 GPA.

A resident of Hat Creek, Olvera is the son of Alfred Olvera, Jr. and Clara Wilson.

The Australia Sports Tour, sponsored by Sports Tours USA, includes sightseeing tours of Sydney.

Olvera said college scouts attend the tournament and it's an opportunity for the athletes to obtain scholarships.

His total trip cost is $3,500 and Olvera is seeking donations to help him get "to the other side of the world."

For more information, contact Olvera's father at the Pit River Casino, 335-2334.
