What's Happening Locally This Week

Free airplane flight Young people who dream of flying an airplane are invited to take to the skies in free flights offered through the Young Eagle Program Saturday at the Fall River Mills airport. The flight is open to anyone ages 8 to 17 and is provided by experienced, local pilots through the Susanville chapter of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) in cooperation with the Eastern Shasta County Sheriff's Flying Posse. There will be refreshments and each young pilot will receive a certificate to commemorate the occasion. Each participant can also have his or her name entered into the "world's largest flight logbook" located at the EAA Air Adventure Museum in Oshkosh, WI. For more information, contact Dick Nemanic at 336-5465, Wayne Robinson at 336-6192 or Ray Williams at 336-5941.

Antique sale

Mayers Intermountain Healthcare Foundation is having an Antique, Estate and Yard Sale this weekend. The fundraising event is from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, in the Commercial Building at the Inter-Mountain fairgrounds in McArthur. Among the items for a silent auction are a fifth-wheel trailer, an organ, and various pieces of furniture. Call Terry Lease at 336-7169 for more informa-

Benefit potluck

In appreciation for the years of support and contributions to the area, a potluck is scheduled for Sunday, 6 p.m., to honor Bill and Betty Stoltenberg and their employees. The event will be held at the Inter-Mountain fairgrounds in McArthur. Beef and pork will be provided. Those attending whose last name begins with an A through L are urged to bring a sidedish or salad, M through Z are urged to bring a dessert. Donations to any Tri Counties Bank will be appreciated and a raffle and auction are planned. All proceeds will go to the Stoltenberg family to assist in costs of losing their business. Telephone Mary Rickert, 336-6667, or Jody Dean, 336-5136 or 336-5695 for more info.

The school board approved a $12 million budget with a five percent reserve for 2003-2004 at their June 18 meeting in Burney.

In a budget report that received kudos from the trustees of the Fall River Joint Unified School District, Budget Analyst Teresea Spooner and Chief Business Official Roger Borkey noted that 77 percent of the district's expenditures pay employee salaries and benefits.

The district is spending $4.1 million, or 38 percent of its total budget for employee benefits.

OBITUARIES

R.G. 'Gary' Franklin

Lumber mill owner, 59

R.G. "Gary" Franklin of Bella Vista, died on June 14, 2003, as a result of an automobile accident. He was born on April 17, 1944, in Yreka, CA.

Gary was raised by his parents, Mary and the late Ralph Franklin, in Etna where he attended elementary and high school.

He attended Shasta College where he met Dianne Mittelbach. They were married in 1964. Their daughter, Heidi, was born in 1967. He attended the University of the Pacific in Stockton and Southern Oregon College in Ashland.

Gary had a life-long interest in the timber industry. In 1951 his father started his logging business from his home base of Etna. In 1964 Ralph and Gary formed a partnership and renamed the business, Ralph Franklin & Son Logging. At that time the company had 6 employees.

Since the mills in Scott Valley were closing, Gary formulated a plan to contract log for other mills, starting with Cheney Grant in Pondosa, CA in 1968. This move proved beneficial in that the logging company made contracts with other mills, such as Sierra Pacific Industries in Susanville and Kimberly Clark in Mt. Shasta. As the Franklins were awarded these contracts, they increased the company's credibility as a reliable and responsible logging company.

While logging in the Pondosa area in 1968, Gary and Dianne formed a second company, Franklin Logging, and bought their first logging truck. By the 1980's they had 20 trucks.

After being based in "We produce healthy forests Mt. Shasta from 1971 to and manufacture quality the mid-80's, the Franklins moved their office to Redding where they continued to contract log for Roseburg Lumber Company until it closed its mill operations in the early 1990's.

Around 1990 the Franklin's employed 100, had 3 yarding sides, 4 tractor sides and was flourishing, but the Endangered Species Act hit the timber industry hard with the protection of the spotted owl.

Gary's philosophy throughout his life was "out of impending disaster comes opportunity." He was always able to "reinvent the wheel." He convinced Roseburg Lumber Company and Hi-Ridge Lumber of Yreka to sell him their small logs, which he turned into chips and hauled to the pulp mills. This lead to his expanding his chipping operations in size with 6 state-of-the line chippers.

In 1995 Franklin Logging started buying timber from private landowners, such as Beaty and Associates, Fruit Growers Supply, and Campbell Timberlands. His idea was to thin their timberland and promote a healthy forest with the use of mechanized logging. The landowners were impressed, and thus, arose our slogan, "We produce healthy forests and manufacture quality forest products."

Next Franklin Logging began buying Federal Forest Service multi-product timber sales that contained small timber and biomass material in an effort to make the National Forests healthy and fire resistant.

In January 2002 Gary and Dianne became owners of a sawmill in Burney and named it Shasta Green, Inc. This mill caters to small log manufacturing and fulfilled Gary's aspirations to one day own a sawmill. His legacy continues.

Gary was an avid Nascar Winston race car fan and a loyal Oakland Raiders fan. He was interested in politics and helped bring about the formation of the Associated California Loggers in the '70's. He was a member of the Republican Party and the National Rifle Association.

First and foremost, Gary was a loving family man. Above all he valued his wife, daughter and grand-children. He leaves behind a loving wife and partner, Dianne, and a wonderful daughter, Heidi, who is married to Glenn Hammond, and they have three terrific children, Emma, Keyan, and Isabelle, who much admired their grandfather.

His father, Ralph passed away in April 2002, leaving his mother, Mary, who now resides in Redding. He leaves a sister, Barbara Quackenbush and husband, Bill, from Coronado, and a niece and two nephews.

And Gary, also, leaves behind so many friends and relatives who respected him for his many talents yet loved him for his great strength and kindness. He was a very private person shying away from publicity because he always felt that his achievements made their own statement.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, June 21, 2003, at 1 p.m. at the Allen and Dahl Funeral Chapel, 9100 Deschutes Road, Palo Cedro.

Contributions can be made in his name to the Log-a-Load for Kids, a program sponsored by the timber industry to provide dren with severe injuries or medical treatment for chil-illnesses.

First place at first fair

Blue ribbon winners in Burney Elementary School's first-ever Science Fair were, from left, sixth grader Cassie Angel, who created an erupting volcano with Brennan Stover (not pictured), and fifth graders Ashley Ingalls and Megan Calzia, who did "Let There Be Light" with plants. Teacher Charlotte Rodriguez organized the fair and wrote the minigrant for materials awarded by the Burney-Fall River Education Foundation. The Science Fair was optional for 4-6 grade students. K-3 could also par ticipate, but their work was not judged.

Mentors trained

Several members of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) - Intermountain/Fall River Mills branch and spouses received training to become mentors to area youth, ages 5 to 19, who would benefit from knowing a caring adult. Coordinator Michael Burke and Development Specialist Toni Wilcox of the non-profit PlusONE Mentors, Inc. in Redding gave the training in Fall River Mills. Participating were, from left, front row, Barbara Westhoven and Susan Osborne, middle row, Phyllis Funk, Elaine Goodner, Kathy Urlie, Rose Peer, and Mary Rickert. In back are Phil Kane, Suzanne Kane, and Ken Evans. Not pictured is Meg Fox. Others who have registered for training later in Redding are Barbara and Ed Thomas, Penny Domenico, Dennis Miller, Terrie Berry, Kathy McAlerney, Steve Westhoven, Donna Sylvester, and Pam Wooden. PlusONE plans to extend mentor training to others in the community once the program is established here.

Fall River Elementary held an assembly June 3 for the Accelerated Reader and Math Contest.

Students chose from more than 250 prizes, valued at more than $1,000 that were donated by the community for this program.

"The contest was an effort by the staff at FRE to motivate children to read and work on math," said Program Coordinator Jeannie Utterback.

The Accelerated Programs are individualized reading and math programs that allow children to work at their pace and level.

Points are earned by reading books and passing a

Fall River Elementary held comprehensive test and by assembly June 3 for the passing math objectives.

The contest at FRE started at the end of November and finished May 30.

"The contest seemed to work as a motivational tool because the students read 5,312 books and mastered 8,548 math objectives this school year," Utterback said.

The points were tabulated throughout the year and the students tracked their progress

During the assembly students selected prizes based on the number of points they earned.

The top students were Jacob Thompson, Jered

Vestal, Alina Grady, Juke Parker, and Donnie Beck.

Fall River Elementary School would like to thank all of those people who donated prizes for the contest.

Congratulations to all those students who participated and learned this year.

No new meningitis cases reported here

BY MEG FOX

No new cases of meningococcal disease have been reported in Burney since the third case, a first grader, was diagnosed June 9 and airlifted to Mercy Medical Center in Redding.

The Shasta County Department of Public Health said Thursday that they still don't know how the three young people contracted the contagious and sometimes deadly bacterial infection.

"There is still nothing to indicate where it came from," said Shasta County Supervising Public Health Nurse Kate Thomas.

Drinking fountains have not been found to have been the cause either, she said.

State lab results have shown that each case was in a meningococcal bacteria subgroup identified as serogroup B.

About half the cases in California are in this group, Thomas said. Its significance is primarily that there is no effective preventive vaccine for the B group.

A Burney Elementary School kindergartner and a Mt. View High School student were diagnosed with bacterial meningitis May 29 and May 31. They have since been released from the Redding hospital.

Shasta County Public Health officials led a community meeting in Burney June 12 to explain the disease and answer question.

They advised the community to do a lot of handwashing, watch for the symptoms, and seek medical care immediately if they are even slightly concerned.

The disease is spread through the exchange of saliva. People who have had close contact with an infected person are most at risk. About one in five people carry the disease without knowing it and without having any symptoms or feeling ill.

Symptoms can appear all at once or progressively and include an extreme headache, a painful, stiff neck, and a high fever (104 degrees in the three Burney cases).

Other symptoms include nausea, vomiting, confusion and extreme lethargy.

Another form of bacterial meningitis – and patients can have both or either one – infects the blood.

In this case, patients in this case develop a red, spidery-like rash under their skin, which, if untreated, spread up the body and get bigger.

"It can move up the body in a few minutes," said Moeschler, "and the body can go into shock and shut down."

It is not an airborne disease and the bacteria do not remain on surfaces very

Water board postpones decision on funding district

The directors for the Burney Water District have postponed making a decision on whether or not to fund their dormant Parks and Recreation department until the July 16 meeting when board members from the Tri-County Community Network can attend.

Potluck slated

The Day Community potluck is set for Saturday, 6:30 p.m., at Day Hall, located at the 10th mile marker on Day Road. Telephone 336-7380 for more information.

With Redding's only birthing facility and state-of-the-art neonatal intensive care, Mercy is the perfect place to welcome your newest addition.

What Are You Doing This Summer?

Vacation Plans

Are you and your family making plans for a summer vacation?

The chances are that you might take a trip in a car and travel to a place close to home. That's what travel experts are predicting for this summer.

Many people are concerned about their jobs and are trying to save money. Because of this, many families will probably travel only short

Are you going to be swimming, skating, going to the beach, playing soccer, visiting relatives or relaxing with a book?

Will you learn new things about subjects that really interest you?

Some families are spending their vacations volunteering to help others. Maybe you are planning to visit an amusement park or a national park.

Many kids are taking classes or going to special camps such as basketball or space camp. Other kids are working on special projects run by their local museums.

Mountains National Park was the most popular park in the park system. About 9 million visitors went to this park in North Carolina and Tennessee. The park is world-famous for its wide variety of plants and animals.

Tips for visiting national parks

- · Call ahead to the site you will be visiting to get the most up-to-date information.
- When you arrive, check out the visitors center to see what special events and activities are planned.
- · Ask rangers questions. They like to answer them, especially from kids. · Wear proper clothing
 - and sunscreen.
 - Respect the wildlife.

Volunteering on vacation

These boys are helping to clean up a park in the San Francisco area.

Many families are finding that helping others is a meaningful way to spend their vacations. Most of the time they volunteer close to home, but some families choose opportunities that are in new and different places.

Experts in volunteer organizations say that more people are giving back to their communities since the tragedies of Sept. 11, 2001.

Organizations such as VolunteerMatch or USA Freedom Corps, churches and local charities all help volunteers find causes they'd like to help.

Some of the ways kids can help include:

· washing cars to raise money for a visiting people in nursing homes.

 playing with puppies and kittens and cleaning kennels at animal shelters.

Tips for volunteering

Here are some ways to make your volunteering more satisfying.

· If your family is volunteering at the same place, make certain there is an activity each family member will be able to do with satisfaction.

· Do some homework to find out what causes you most care about.

 Make a list of the skills your family has to offer. Or find a place where volunteering will help you learn new skills.

 Plan your time wisely. Do you want to volunteer for a one-time event, such as cleaning a beach? Do you want to give a certain number of hours each week? Or do you want to volunteer for most of the summer?

She credits diverse background leading to her success

Fall River High School graduate, Denise Winn, who just passed her Bar Exam to become a lawyer, said she is proof positive that a diverse background leads to success.

A descendant of the Madesi and Ahjumawi bands of the Pit River Tribe, she was born and raised in McArthur, as was her father, and her father's father, and so forth.

"I love the fact that my children and I walk on the same ground as our Ahjumawi ancestors," she said.

Inspired at a young age by watching her grandmother and mother participate in Tribal meetings, Denise always said she would be a lawver.

"I am the second member from the Pit River Tribe to become a lawyer. I've spoken to others in the Intermountain area and so far, have heard of only five other attornevs who have spent their entire lives in the Fall River Valley.

"It's time for both of those statistics to increase in number."

Longtime McArthur resident, Rachel Oilar, recently asked Denise at what age she decided she wanted to be a lawyer.

"As long as I can remember,' she replied and Denise said as long as she could Rachel remember and because laughed she remembers Denise saying that at age six.

"I had it all figured out. I planned on graduating from college at 21, finishing law school at 24, getting married at 25, and having children at 27," she said.

And she did it, but in a different order.

Directly after high school, Denise attended California State University, Chico, and majored in accounting.

"It felt safe. I had worked as an accounting clerk for a local accountant throughout high school, so I knew I could do it."

After one year, Denise changed her major to economics, only to quit with one semester left to finish her bachelor's degree.

"I was offered a job in Eureka and figured I didn't need the degree. I worked in Eureka for one year and found myself working only to pay for going home to McArthur every weekend.

"When I realized what I was doing, I quit and moved home. Then I met my children's father, fell in love, and had two beautiful children. My children are my driving force."

Denise got back on track and began pursuing her legal career when her oldest son. Joseph, was a year and a half, and her youngest son, Alexander, was only two weeks old.

"I was at a crossroads. Their father and I had just ended our relationship. I knew I wasn't going to return to work with my former employer.

"As I held Alexander while Joseph stood by my legs, I looked down at them and thought 'Okay, now what am I going to do to provide the best life possible for you

The answer was to go back to school to finish her bachelor's degree.

She looked into the satellite programs offered by CSU, Chico, at Burney High School and chose to study political science and earn a paralegal certificate.

Two years later Denise added to her Associate of Arts degree in real estate. a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science, a minor in American Indian studies, and a paralegal certificate. Denise, Joseph, and Alexander were then off to Tempe, Ariz., for law school.

Sandra Michelle Newton, daughter of Eric and Kathy Newton of Fall River Mills, was inducted May 21 into Mortar Board Senior Honorary at the University of Oregon in Eugene, Ore.

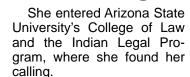

Sandra met the dual selection requirements of a high grade point average plus a significant level of service to of Eric and Kathy Newton of her university.

Most recently she completed a term of service as co-facilitator of a Freshman Interest Group in Political Science and World Diplomacy.

She is majoring in political science and international studies.

In September, she is taking a semester of study abroad in Capetown, South of the A & S College, at the Africa, where she will study the incorporation of women in the political process following the end of apartheid and the reorganization of the South African government.

Sandra spent her Winter Quarter of this school year as an Intern for the Labour Party of the United Kingdom in London, England.

Arizona State University's College of Law and the University of New Mexico's School of Law are currently the only two law schools in the U.S. that have Indian law programs certified by the American Bar Association.

During law school, Denise served as a student representative for Arizona State's Indian Legal Program Advisory Council, and also as a research assistant and a volunteer for the Indian Legal Assistance Program.

She was president of her local chapter's Native American Law Student Association and served as the student representative to the Native American Bar Association.

During her first summer in Tempe, she worked as a criminal prosecutor in the Gila River Indian Community Tribal Court.

The following summer she was employed as a summer associate with the Washington, D.C.-based law firm Hobbs, Straus, Dean & Walker.

Denise was also a Pedrick Scholar, an honor equivalent to being on the Dean's List.

"I also made a point of participating in activities with my children. They played soccer, learned karate and took swimming lessons year round."

She laughed and added, One summer of T-Ball in the 120-degree Arizona weather was enough of baseball until we returned to the Intermountain Area."

It was not long until her skills were well known in the Arizona Native community and nationally.

In 2001, Denise was elected as the President for the National Native American Law Students Association (NNALSA).

"When I was elected, I sat on the board with people who were going to school at Cornell, Harvard, Wisconsin, Denver and Albuquerque.

"I kept thinking 'Wow, little ole me, from McArthur, California, is the President of a national law student organization.' It was very humbling."

With her position as the NNALSA President, Denise began working to correct common public misperceptions about Native American issues.

She traveled as close as San Diego and as far away as Connecticut. She spoke at various conferences across the United States about attending law school, being a lawyer, and Federal Indian

"I even spoke to the United National Indian Tribal Youth conference in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

"I wanted to remind our Indian youth where they came from and what their peoples' invaluable contributions have been.

"We have a lot of which to be proud. That's something the history books don't address; still, that doesn't mean we do not exist or that we do not matter, though that's too often a misconception that is bought into."

Denise credits her professional mentors who helped develop her confidence and character.

"Encouraging our community youth to excel is important. Who knows where I'd be if I didn't have these people supporting me."

Denise knew that once she set her mind to it, she could accomplish anything.

And she has a message for the Pit River youth:

"Know your history. Your people were the first to be removed from their lands because of beliefs others did not understand. Your relatives went, and they came back.

"Look at them, they were not big people, they were not city people. But they had a big heart, and they were brave.

"Share your history with your friends, family, and others, but mostly share it with other Pit River people so that they know they come from brave people, even if they are not big.'

The fact that Denise has come full circle is no sur-

"Denise genuinely cares about the issues in the local community," Leslie Cantrall

"She always talked about doing something for the Intermountain Area when she got out of school.

'She's just a good person, and she also promotes a positive image in the community - for all children (native and non-native)."

"All the way my family, and friends community members cheered me on as someone paving a way," Denise said.

"As I left for law school, several friends and family members walked me to the door, telling me how proud they were and what this meant to them regardless of how the result came out.

"Three years later, when I stood up to accept my Juris Doctor diploma, I reflected on all the prayers of ancestors generations past, elders behind me then and our youth, whose eyes I could look into every day and remember why I was doing

"I blazed a trail. I went someplace other Intermountain area children have not been. And now those behind me will go where I have not gone, but propelled by some of the momentum that I helped to set in place."

Denise is now home in McArthur, but she hasn't slowed down.

She currently serves as a board member on the Pit River Health Board.

She is a member on the California Rural Indian Health Board. She is assisting her Tribe to establish a limited jurisdiction Tribal Court system, and she supports her son playing coach pitch baseball.

With law school and the California Bar examination behind her, Denise said she is planning the opening of her own law firm in Fall River Mills. "I want to serve the community that stood behind me and gave so much."
