Sweet success at Chocolate Fest

Some $14,000 was raised Sunday at the sixth annual Valentine Chocolate Festival, sponsored by the Intermountain Healthcare Foundation. Proceeds will be put towards the purchase of a $48,000 blood analyzer for Mayers Memorial Hospital. About $7,000 is still needed for the equipment. Pictured above is Frannie Pasternak, age 1, of McArthur who is all smiles at Sunday's event. She is the daughter of Jody and Bryan Pasternak. It's slow, but steady progress for former saloon

BY MEG FOX

The plywood boards have been taken down and sunlight once again streams in through two new plate glass windows at the former Y Saloon in Fall River Mills.

The windows represent the slow but steady progress being made by the Committee to Preserve and Protect Fall River (CPR).

CPR now owns the long-neglected building at the east end of Fall River Mills that many said was an unwelcoming sight and detrimental to the local economy.

After more than three years of attempts to get the original owners, Bill Brunner and Sally Voorheis, of Glenburn, to refurbish the Y-Saloon and several other Main Street buildings they own, CPR took the couple to court.

Their victory was small in some respects: $5 each to principal CPR members and Fall River business owners Scott and Sandy Jensen, Terry Briggs, Bill Johnson, and Todd Brown for defamation.

The court awarded another $1 each for loss of profits to all but the Jensens, owners of the Fall River Hotel and restaurant a few doors down from the Y.

The court awarded the Jensens $40,000, which they donated back to CPR to buy the Y-Saloon.

Briggs' wife, Barbara, said last week that CPR is continuing to fix up the building while it is listed for sale at $90,000.

CPR member Brown, a real estate agent with Fall River Real Estate, has the listing and is not taking a commission if and when it sells, Briggs said.

Few cuts to local deputies expected

BY MEG FOX

The Burney substation is keeping its current staff of 17 and its current level of service in spite of $600,000 in budget cuts to the Shasta County Sheriff's Department.

The department's administrative analyst reviewed each budget unit in the Sheriff's department to look for cuts and savings and, though cuts were made in Burney, the general public probably won't even notice.

"We're looking pretty good," said Lt. Greg Wrigley.

The substation is budgeted for 18 officers, but in recent years has had to freeze one position to produce salary savings in Burney's budget. Due to the cuts, that position will remain unfunded next year, as well. In fatter times, the additional patrol officer provided graveyard coverage.

"We turned in half of our cell phones and some of our computers and saved a bundle," said Wrigley.

The Burney substation is currently staffed with a lieutenant, a detective, two sergeants, a school resource officer, three sheriff's service officers, and seven patrol officers.

Another deputy, Jeff Northrup, is in field officer training in Redding and will likely be working in Burney in a few weeks.

Wrigley said the substation has four potential retirements coming up — two deputies and two service officers.

If those employees decide to retire, the department is budgeted to fill the openings.

"That is, if we can recruit people," Wrigley said. "We need to find people who want to come up here and work."

In Redding, service counter hours have been reduced for people who need to have fingerprints taken, to obtain licenses, or to register as felony offenders. That service is now available only on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., but includes the lunch hour.

Jury selection expected soon for mom charged with murder

After almost a year's delay, jury selection is set to begin Feb. 18 for the Shasta County Superior Court trial of a Burney mother charged with shooting her husband in 1992.

Shasta County Assistant District Attorney Greg Gaul said that since Kristi Lunbery, 34, is facing a maximum sentence of 25 years to life, jury selection in Redding could take longer "to allow for more challenges."

She is charged with killing her then husband, Charlie Bateson, 25, who was found shot to death in their home on Fir Street on April 17, 1992.

At the time, Lunbery, who has since remarried, reportedly told investigators that she was in Redding with her children when the murder occurred.

The case was never solved and remained cold until December 2001 when detectives interviewed Lunbery again and, they said, she confessed.

She has been free on bail. Bateson and Lunbery both attended Burney High School, where her father, Ron Conley, coached his future son-in-law, a star football and baseball player.

Hunting death trial underway in Redding

Jury selection was underway last week in Shasta County Superior Court in Redding for the trial of the man charged with involuntary manslaughter in the 2003 shooting death of a Cassel man.

Kenneth Wayne Park, 44, of Anderson, is accused of being grossly negligent in discharging a firearm while hunting with his friend, Michael Wood, 28, according to Shasta County Senior Deputy District Attorney Howard Welch.

On Sept. 21, the opening morning of the 2003 hunting season, Park and Wood were in a wooded area off the Old Dump Road, five miles southeast of Burney High School.

Park reportedly fired his rifle across the dirt road and shot and killed Wood, who was about 150 to 200 feet away, according to the Shasta County Sheriff's Office.

Building fixed up to sell

She said if the Y building doesn't sell by spring, CPR would have a fundraiser to help cover the cost to paint and do more repairs.

"We've got 10 to 13 years of deferred maintenance we're trying to correct. When the snow is gone, we want to try and get the roof fixed and we hope to paint the building this spring," she said.

The court also told the Brunners they had to sell a small business office they owned that is next to the Fall River Hotel and they have and the new owner is reportedly fixing it up.

No charge for the charge

Marty Horn, left, of the Fall River Valley Citizens Patrol stands with Keith Franklin of Napa Auto Parts in Fall River Mills, which donated a new battery for the group's patrol pickup. 'We are grateful that they are here,' Franklin noted of the volunteer group's efforts. Other donations have come from Staub Energy and CFN, which each donate $50 a month in fuel to the group. Those wanting to make a cash donation to the organization can mail it to the Fall River Mills Citizens Patrol or the Shasta County Sheriff's office Burney substation.

Chocolate fest winners named

BY MEG FOX

Chocolate was melting in saucepans on Intermountain area stoves Friday and Saturday as local and even a few out-of-town chocolatiers perfected their recipes to enter in Sunday's sixth annual Valentine Chocolate Festival at the Intermountain fairgrounds in McArthur.

About 170 people attended this year to help the Intermountain Healthcare Foundation raise $14,000 for the purchase of a new blood analyzer, according to Director Margaret Truan, who coordinated the festival.

The Foundation needs about $7,000 more to complete the purchase.

Hal and Ellie Haydock, of Fall River Mills, who have already established their reputation as great cooks, took the $200 Grand Prize with their Chocolate-Chocolate Cherry Cheesecake.

In the Adult division, Louanne Wellemeyer's Chocolate Raspberry Torte won the first place prize of $100.

Danny Smith took second place and $40 for his Chocolate Chip Pecan Cookies.

A Grand Marnier Cake gave Hal Haydock another prize, third place and $20.

In the category for adults with 11- to 16-year-old partners, the team of Cathy and Cliff Manly won first place for their Creamy Double Decker Fudge.

Allan and Bobbi Bettger won second prize with their Chocolate Fudge Triangles entry. Third prize went to neighbors Carol May and Shawna Truan for their Oreo Brownies.

In the adult and 10-years-old and younger category, Jacque Mainstone and Kylee Hawkins won first place for Sweet Heat, described as a jalapeno chocolate sauce for cookie dipping.

The Haydocks were back in the winners' circle again, with Cathy and Kevin Haydock taking second place for their Soldier Mountain Cake.

Jim and Colton Policastro won third prize for their Minty Brownies.

In the chocolate sculpture contest, Natalie Cox won with her Chocolate Surprise.

Cory Eades correctly guessed that there were 451 Hershey's kisses in the Count the Kisses jar and won the candy and jar that had been donated by Holiday Quality Foods.

Mt. Burney Coffee Company donated coffee to give the judges something to taste besides chocolate.

Sampling the sweets and judging the 67 entries were Jim and Janis Hamlin, Pat and Kerry Harrigan, Dale and Judy Barnard, Steve and Bobetta Berthelson, Dewey Matthews and his friend, Gordon, from out of town, Eric and Kathy Newton, Walt Caldwell, Jerry Fikes, Gary Cox, Mary Thomas, Kelly Romberger, and Terry Lease.

MAKING IT YOUR BUSINESS

Richard Hathaway began Packway Materials, Inc. forty-one years ago. It's easy enough to find at 22244 Cassel Road in Cassel because of the trademark dinosaur, "Dino", made from old engine parts, nuts, and bolts that stands guard over a menagerie of refurbished gas tanks, airplane wings, and radiators welded together to form animals and birds.

Packway Materials, Inc. will pave a driveway, put in a septic tank, grade a road, and give ideas for landscape materials from their ample variety of bark, sand, cinder, and gravel. They can lay the foundation of a home or sell ready-mix concrete for the do-it-yourselfer.

Their motto, "Our strength goes beyond our concrete" tells the story of service with a smile with gazillion miles of integrity.

To get further information on buying materials or having construction work done, call 335-4197. They are open 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, with exceptions of weekends arranged in advance.

Intermountain Clothing & Burney Feed & Pet Supply, owned by Darrell and Lori Martin is located on Main Street in Burney. They have something for everyone, even the independent cats, pampered dogs, singing birds, and tiny gerbils. Hay for feed and for bedding, and chicken feed are only a few of their farm supplies.

Western wear from pants and shirts to boots for men, women, and children are available. There is always a large selection of sale items to choose from and this time of year they have a good supply of snow boots and warm jackets.

They are open Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday hours are 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. and they are closed on Wednesday and Sunday. Pacific Gas and Electric, Frontier telephone, ATT wireless and ATT cell bill can be paid at their store.

Robert Lundgrin, manager, & Charles Pierson, produce clerk

Ray's Food Place in Fall River took over the Sierra Market March 17, 1999. Manager Robert Lundgrin said that Ray's twenty-seven employees pride themselves on being friendly to their customers. "We pass on better deals to our customers through weekly sales from the corporate office and with manager initiated in store sales.", he said.

SHIFTS IN REAL ESTATE MARKET TRENDS

A few years ago your neighbors put their house on the market and had so many buyers that they were on the winning side of a bidding war. Now you are trying to sell your home, and there's just not action. The real estate market place is a very fickle. Many factors come into play, but they all boil down to supply and demand. When buyer demand is high and the supply of real estate for sale is low, prices tend to escalate until they reach a certain point where buyers begin to just say no and listing inventories increase. When this market reversal happens, sellers who price their homes at the higher level of previous sales prices must re-think their pricing strategies. If they don't, their homes may not sell. Whether you are buying or selling a home, it is important to remember that the shift from a seller's to a buyer's market can occur very quickly. You can count on us for sound advice on what phase the market is in right now. For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate talk to us at Century 21 Big Pines Realty. She hangs up dancing shoes, choreography to garden

BY MEG FOX

As a young girl, Lynda Nolte loved sports, especially tennis and swimming, and though she was asked to leave the glee club because she couldn't sing, the Clovis High School tomboy also loved musicals.

Her interest in movement and music came together by chance when Nolte, in her 20's and working as a secretary in a title company, kicked up her heels and left that job to choreograph and teach dancing, and enter ballroom dance competitions.

In 1978, a "friend of a friend" who was a dance teacher taught her how to disco dance and then invited Nolte to come to a teacher training program at a nearby Arthur Murray Dance Studio.

She took to dancing right away.

"It was fun and I learned quickly because I enjoyed it so much.

"My friends told me I wouldn't be a good dancer, but I caught on and it was a more exciting job than a title company," said Nolte.

She was hired as a fulltime instructor, on the floor with customers from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. and putting in about 40 to 48 hours a week, while also becoming interested in ballroom dance competitions, called DanceSport.

Her life was soon filled with dancing.

"We'd go in to the studio early and get a partner and practice. There was always a new fad dance to learn.

"After the studio closed at 10 p.m., we were wound up and so we'd go out dancing," said Nolte.

She was also competing, waltzing or doing the exotic tango with partners in sumptuous ballrooms all over California and in Mexico and even on the Queen Mary.

Nolte, 47, has since retired from dancing, and also from a subsequent and somewhat surprising career as a federal park ranger and naturalist at Yosemite and Kings Canyon National Park.

"I wanted to learn more about the outside world," she said simply. "All I'd seen of the world were the insides of hotels."

She and her husband, Ken, a wildlife biologist and natural resource teacher at Shasta College, moved to Round Mountain about a year ago.

She paints watercolors and when the weather is fine, she puts her skills as a Master Gardener to use designing a backyard wildlife habitat.

She has closed the door on dance, though admits to missing choreography.

She has even gotten rid of her scrapbooks, photographs, and trophies from at least 100 dance competitions – but not all of the memories, like the music of a Viennese Waltz and swirling across grand ballrooms in a glittering gown with matching (and pinching) three-inch heels.

"It's a neat feeling when two people can move around a floor together to music they really like," she said.

The competition judges said she was best in the American-style Latin category, dancing the rhumba, tango, mambo, cha cha, and swing.

"My favorite competitive dance was the fox trot. It's where I got my highest scores," she said.

She also loved dancing in the American Smooth category that included the Viennese Waltz, and the fox trot, tango, and waltz.

"For the Smooth, you had to be close in height with your partner and that was hard for me because I'm 5'3'," she said.

For pure enjoyment, her favorite dance is the waltz or the Bolero. "It's the Spanish version of the waltz. It's very romantic."

DanceSport competition was an insular world for Nolte, who found it glamorous and fun, but at the same time cutthroat and much too political.

The 1992 movie, 'Strictly Ballroom,' an Australian comedy about ballroom competition, "is a satire but is really the way it is.

"Competitive dancing is exciting. We traveled to competitions in huge ballrooms in glorious hotels. The men wore tuxes and the women wore ball gowns decorated with rhinestones."

But there is an ugly side to DanceSport, she said.

"Your friends are friends, but you're also competing against each other."

And what may not be apparent to the average viewer are the not-so-dainty dance tricks happening on the floor.

"Dancing a foxtrot, for example, you could block another couple into a corner so they couldn't move out to show their moves and if you did this in front of a judge, you could score points. There's a lot more going on than dancing."

Her first reality shock came at an early competition

Inspired by visit to Blue Spring

Rocky Romero, 12, is a sixth grade student in Sarah Clark's alternative education class in Burney. His heritage is part Mexican and part Native American from the Illmawi Band of the Pit River Nation.

In November, he and Mrs. Clark went on a field trip together to see the turquoise springs known as the Blue Spring, between the Pit River and Hat Creek.

The simple experience had a surprising and profound effect on Romero.

"When we got back, I had a sort of vision. I could close my eyes and see this story. I told Mrs. Clark and she wanted me to type it up," Romero said.

He did and his story, beautiful, like an Indian myth, turned out to be quite similar to traditional Native American stories that had already been recorded.

"Mrs. Clark gave me some papers to read about my ancestors. It was a gift.

"And it was cool because I found out more about my ancestors. But when I started reading it, I was pretty shocked. I was freakin'," he said.

He read an Apache story about a bubbling spring and an Indian boy, who had a beaded coup stick similar to the beaded lance that Romero envisioned and wrote about.

"That's what scared me," he said.

He also read a classroom textbook that included the story, "Thunder Butte," by Virginia Driving Hawk Sneve, about sacred Native American symbols.

"It was about a boy who was sent on a quest. An elder told his grandson to walk on the butte.

"I wasn't sent on a quest, but a field trip," he said, describing other similarities between his vision and Sneve's story.

ROCKY ROMERO

The following is Romero's 'myth.'

Illmawi Time Lance

By Rocky Romero

"I am standing by what my ancestors might have called blue water; it is a turquoise spring.

"Under my feet I feel nature's wet carpet. I smell the fragrance of silverthorn bushes. The cold winter sun, alone in its brightness, breaks through dripping wet clouds.

"Wait, I am experiencing a powerful rumble in nature's basement.

"Across the turquoise spring, I see two, slender Indian boys that are, by my guess, about 10 or 11, with long, braided hair that shines in the winter sun.

"The two boys are quick at running. They are playing with an Indian toy or some kind of sacred object. I was right the second time. It's a sacred symbol to their tribe and village.

"The boy who holds the object trips and falls over a huge root that comes out of the ground. The object he possesses is a three-foot, sacred beaded lance.

"As he falls to the ground, the lance is hurled into midair. It hovers over the spring until I catch it with both of my strong hands.

"If I didn't catch that lance, that young boy would have been in for it."

in Acapulco, Mexico.

"Our coach pulled (my partner and me) aside and told us to do they best we could, but that the judges knew we were first timers and first timers couldn't win. It shocked me. I don't know why I stayed in it after that. I guess to show them."

Judges would mark dancers down if they happened not to like a dancer's coach or partner.

"I was competing once and a judge didn't like my partner. When you get high marks from all but one judge, you know something's wrong," Nolte said.

Appearance matters.

"Judges look at coloration and at your hair and your partner's hair and at who designed your costumes."

Dancers have to find compatible partners and that's not so easy.

"You spend so much time together, you have to get along. A lot of the men in ballroom dancing were gay, but when they weren't, it presented other problems that made it difficult," she said.

Focus on funding rural area chambers

Representatives from several rural chambers of commerce viewed a few of Burney's Upscale Fish and received samples of Fall River Wild Rice and mint oil during the first Rural Chambers of Commerce Empowerment Forum.

The Business Resources Center in Redding sponsored the Jan. 30 forum that included local representatives and representatives from chambers in Mt. Shasta, McCloud, Anderson, and Shasta Lake City.

Barbara Briggs, who is a member of the Burney Chamber, represented the Committee to Preserve and Protect (CPR) Fall River and brought the wild rice and mint oil to highlight the agricultural industries of the Fall River Valley.

"Each group was invited to bring something special and unique to their area for 'show and tell'," Briggs said.

Sherri Quinlan and Lynn Miller represented the Greater Burney Chamber of Commerce, which now includes Cassel, Hat Creek, Old Station, Round Mountain, Montgomery Creek and Big Bend.

In addition to the fish designs, Miller and Quinlan told the group about the Lassen Volcanic Legacy Byway.

Briggs explained that though the Burney Chamber's name is not officially changed they have added "greater" because "we've expanded our scope to include the outlying areas. We're pooling our resources and making our voices louder in eastern Shasta County.

She said Round Mountain, Big Bend, and Montgomery Creek recently joined the Burney Chamber and "it's a good partnership."

The group discussed ways to operate rural chambers and keep the doors open in the current economy and how to promote business and tourism.

"In round table discussions we discovered that there are many similarities between the chambers in their needs and goals," Briggs said.

She said they talked primarily about funding issues and how to regain some of the Transit Occupancy Tax (TOT) revenue to help fund those chambers that are not in incorporated cities.

The group agreed that a well-designed Web site is one of the most economical ways to reach people.

"The forum was such a success that we decided to meet on a quarterly basis and to include Weaverville, Cottonwood and Red Bluff," said Briggs.

The Anderson Chamber is hosting the next meeting.

A lot of time is spent practicing and traveling and a lot of money is spent on coaches, costumes, shoes, and entry fees.

Coaching lessons cost about $80 to $100 per hour.

Nolte took dancing lessons, too, in ballet, tap and jazz.

Costumes range in prices from $400 to $2,000.

"When you start out, you buy other people's costumes or learn to make your own. In bigger competitions, dancers wear designer gowns and those are more costly."

Dancers wear different types of shoes for the different competitions and to complete the look with their costumes and gowns.

"A fad for a while was getting white satin shoes and dying them with make-up to go with your skin tone," she said.

Nolte wasn't in the competition for the prize money.

"You wouldn't win more than $100, but you would win recognition and then people would want coaching lessons and if you got big enough you were invited to travel and judge competitions. I did that a little, but it became hard to compete and own a studio."

Nolte taught dance for 20 years - in Fresno, Palm Spring, San Anselmo, Yosemite, Reedley and in Santa Rosa, where she opened her own Arthur Murray Dance Studio franchise, a business she ran for nine years.

In the early 1980's, people wanted to learn disco dancing and the Texas Two-Step, La Bamba, salsa, and all the classics - the foxtrot, waltz, cha cha, mambo, rhumba, and swing.

New dances reflected the times and often evolved from the movies that were popular, like John Travolta's revolutionizing dance in the movie, 'Saturday Night Fever.'

Most of the fad dances were, and still are, related to the basics, Nolte said.

"The swing became the Hustle and then the West Coast Swing, which was actually from the East Coast, was adopted as the dance of California. Even today's hip-hop is the basic step from the Charleston. Dances come around again and again."

Dancing is something "everyone can learn, though some people pick it up more easily than others or have a better ear for music. But anyone can learn and have fun," she said.

Surprisingly, she discovered that "those who had the hardest time appreciated learning to dance the most. The men who were dragged to the studio by their wives and girlfriends were the ones who didn't want to leave."

The biggest challenge for many students was learning, or giving up, the lead in touch dancing.

"Women back lead and it's a hard habit to break and most men don't lead unless they know how. It's the hardest thing to learn."

But when the men did learn to lead their partner, Nolte found it fascinating. "It gave them confidence. It was interesting to watch. They learned they could lead somewhere in life."

Eventually, Nolte wanted to spend more time with family, who were "aging and dying and losing touch."

She closed her business and put away her dancing shoes.

"It was great while I was in it, but then, after 20 years, it was time to move on."

Nolte met her future husband when she was getting her degree in forestry and natural resources at Reedley College in Reedley, CA.

She worked as a park ranger for three years before she and Ken moved to the Intermountain area, where they share their love of the natural resources.

They also have a pact. He doesn't dance and won't ask her to teach him and she won't ask him to learn.

"I'm a Master Gardener and it's what I like to do now," she said. "I'm working on our yard and have put in a pond with a creek and have registered the property with the National Wildlife Federation. I'm also looking into becoming a habitat steward so I can teach others."

Since she's outside a lot now, "the birds are my music."

And if she has the urge to dance, "I dance in my garden," she said, laughing.

Permits available for the new year

2004 Firewood permits for the Lassen National Forest are available now.

Firewood gathering and cutting will be allowed in Woodcutting zones III and IV, the Hat Creek and Almanor Ranger Districts, but temporarily suspended in Woodcutting zone V, the Eagle Lake Ranger District.

According to District Ranger Robert Andrews, "We are concerned about resource protection."

"The water-soaked roadbeds and meadows are extremely vulnerable to damage this time of year."

"That is why we have historically closed this zone in winter to woodcutting since 1995."

The Lassen National Forest 2004 Fuelwood Permit Program remains unchanged from last year.

Household members can purchase up to ten cords of wood per household at $10 per cord, with a two cord minimum purchase.

Firewood permits valid for both the Lassen and Plumas National Forests can be requested at the time of purchase.

To minimize the impact of vehicles on public lands woodcutters and visitors are asked to use extra care when operating vehicles on the water soaked forest and roads.

Woodcutters are reminded they are responsible for any damage they cause to the forest including roads, meadows, water bars, or other erosion structures that can be damaged by vehicle use.

Additionally woodcutters must use extra care to remove slash or limbs from roads, ditches, and culvert inlets to prevent possible flooding.

The actual permit and map list other restrictions and woodcutter responsibilities.

Permits, local conditions, and additional information can be obtained from the district ranger stations.

Mayers to host health fair at FRHS gymnasium March 27

"Mayers Memorial Hospital is hosting the 23rd annual Health Fair on March 27 at the Fall River High School gymnasium.

This is a new location for Fall River Mills and offers easier setup for the Health Fair participants," states Jerry Fikes, Mayers Memorial Hospital CEO.

"Registration will begin at 8 a.m. in the foyer of the gym for this free community program.

There will be hourly drawings for gift certificates totaling $250 from local merchants using a free raffle ticket with each registration package.

Additionally, a $100 dollar bill will be grand prize for the last raffle ticket drawn at the noon close of the Health Fair," says Fikes.

"Last year 239 citizens visited the health fair from throughout the hospital district, including residents from Adin, Bieber, and Lookout.

One of the attractions for 203 of last year's attendees was the laboratory package of complete blood count, TSH, and coronary risk profile chemistry panel for $35.

APSA prostate cancer test is available for an additional $15.

Because these tests require 12 hours of fasting (water only, NO food or other beverages) we will be trying to identify diabetic patients waiting in line, and get their blood drawn first, so they can eat something and restore their blood sugar to normal levels without delay," states Dale Barnard, Mayers laboratory director.

"We are planning on having free blood glucose checks, height-weight blood pressure checks, foot screening, vision and hearing screening, depression and stroke screening, HIV screening, and many other educational displays and booths.

We are hopeful that Shasta County Public Health will be there to answer questions about SARS, West Nile Virus, and the Asian bird flu's that are seasonal in nature," states Carolyn Lease RN, Co-chair for the Health Fair Committee.

PHAB Awards to be presented in April

Do you know someone or an organization that has shown outstanding leadership in a health related issue?

If you do, the Public Health Advisory Board (PHAB) wants to hear from you.

The PHAB is seeking nominations for the second annual Excellence in Public Health Awards to be presented during Public Health Week, on Tuesday, April 6.

Nominees should have demonstrated outstanding leadership in the field of Public Health.

Nominees can be health-care professionals, non-profit organizations, businesses, elected officials, schools, government staff, or individuals from the general public.

"These awards are an excellent way to demonstrate that if Public Health is to be successful in protecting and promoting health, it must work with members of the community.

"This work is difficult, and these awards are the least we can do to thank the nominees for their energy and dedication," said Cindy Dodds, Chairwoman of the PHAB.

For more information, or to request a nomination form, please contact Minnie Sagar, PHAB Liaison at 225-5820.

Nomination forms must be received by Shasta County Public Health no later than Feb. 9.

Wheeled vehicles over 1000 lbs damage trails

Lassen National Forest snowmobile routes are closed to vehicles with a GVW of over 1,000 pounds until March 31, 2004.

Lassen National Forest has six major designated snowmobile areas with 477 miles of groomed trails on the forest.

According to Michael Zunino Patrol Captain for the Lassen, "We are concerned about resource protection and visitor safety."

"Wheeled vehicles over 1000 pounds damage the trails and create very hazardous conditions for other users."

Already this year wheeled vehicles have damaged several miles of trails near Fredonyer.

Although no one was reportedly injured in this incident, future violators may not be as lucky.

Violation of the closure area is not only dangerous, but it can be costly as well.

The punishment for violation of a closure area is up to a $5,000 for an individual, $10,000 for an organization or imprisonment for not more than six months or both in addition to the cost associated with restoring the trail.

Once a wheeled vehicle has damaged a snowmobile trail it is very costly to attempt to restore the trail and the forest has a very limited budget to maintain the trails.

Funding for the snowmobile areas comes from the State of California Off Highway Division.

According to Zunino "This funding allows the Lassen to maintain one of the largest groomed snowmobile trail systems in California."

Visitors are reminded there are also areas in which vehicles of any type are restricted such as the designated wilderness areas.

Lassen National Forest visitors are fortunate to find three wilderness areas within the boundaries for visitors to enjoy peace and solitude.

The wilderness areas are roughly 10 percent of the forestland.

Operating mechanized vehicles of any kind in a wilderness can bring violators costly fines and even jail time.

The fine can be as high as $5,000 and six months in jail.

In previous years, snowmobile operators have been prosecuted for knowingly venturing into our wilderness areas.

With over 1.2 million acres, Lassen National Forest has enough space for all kinds of outdoor recreation.

Snowmobile travel is also restricted in Lassen Volcanic National Park.

Interestingly, the Lassen National Forest has over 3,600 miles of roads of which only 12 percent is closed annually during the snow season to normal vehicles.

The remaining 3,200 miles in the forest road system remains open for all uses.

Drivers are cautioned that forest roads can be easily damaged during the winter months and drivers may encounter snowdrifts or other obstacles unexpectedly.

Caution is always advised during winter travel.

"Make sure you tell someone where you are going and when you will be back."

And in the event you do get stranded, "Stay with your vehicle," urges Forest Service Safety Manager and Lassen County Search and Rescue Team volunteer Robert Trussell.

"It is much easier to find a vehicle in the forest than a person on foot."

Vehicles can also provide some shelter from the elements.

While waiting for help to arrive, signal your distress by using emergency flashers and tying a handkerchief or flagging on the antenna or mirror.

Be sure to keep the tailpipe clear and a downwind window open while periodically running the engine for warmth.

Additional information about restricted areas or current conditions can be obtained from the following offices:

FTB targets those who failed to file

Starting now, the Franchise Tax Board (FTB) is contacting nearly 600,000 Californians who failed to file their 2002 state income tax returns, according to the FTB.

"During these difficult financial times, everyone needs to pay their taxes and play by the rules," stated State Controller and FTB Chair Steve Westly.

The FTB's filing enforcement program targets people who earned California income, but did not file a state income tax return.

This program collected nearly $370 million dollars last year.

Here's how it works: The FTB annually receives more than 160 million income records from third parties such as banks, employers, state departments, the IRS, and other sources.

The FTB matches these income records against the records of tax returns filed.

The FTB gives non-filers 30 days to file their return or show why a tax return is not due.

Those who ignore the letter will soon get a tax assessment with added penalties and fees.

While this program mostly identifies wage earners and self-employed individuals who have not filed, it also detects people contributing to the underground economy, that is, who receive cash payments unreported to the government.

For example, using mortgage interest paid records to determine whether an individual had a filing requirement resulted in nearly 25,000 tax assessments last year collecting an average of $4,500 per taxpayer.

The FTB has a website for those who receive notices, www.ftb.ca.gov/inc.

Through the website, people can request more time to respond, retrieve information that can assist them in filing a tax return, learn about payment options, request tax forms, ask to be reminded about next years filing deadline, correct a misreported social security number, and get answers to questions they may have concerning the notices.

Individuals can also call the FTB at (866) 204-7902 to get information.

Raiders defeat their Fall River rivals

BY MEG FOX

To the pleasure of Burney basketball fans, the Raiders defeated their Fall River rivals Feb. 3, with the Raiders winning all of their games on their host's turf.

"What a night for Burney," said a fan.

In Varsity competition, the Burney girls' game came down to the wire, but when the buzzer sounded they had the one-point, 31-30, win.

"This is one of those games that won't soon be forgotten by my senior players. It's always great getting the win against your rival, but to do it at the last game you will play with them was very emotional for all," said Burney coach Susan Ayers.

The Fall River girls had the lead in the first quarter and Burney tied it up in the second. The Bulldogs fought and won back their lead in the third to bring the score to 23-19.

Burney's Paige Logan hit a three-pointer to take the Raiders to within two points of Fall River in the fourth and then, with 1.7 seconds left on the clock, Aimee Ayers made a 3-point play that gave Burney the win.

Ayers was also the top scorer with 11 points and 17 rebounds. Logan scored 8 points with 8 rebounds.

Fall River coach Kathy Jones said her varsity girls played a flat game and were "out hustled."

Brittany Shelton scored the most points for the Bulldogs with 13. She had 9 rebounds, 7 steals and 1 assist. Abby Salters scored 8 points with 4 steals and 5 assists.

The Raider Boys' varsity was down each quarter until a stunning, 15-point, fourth-quarter comeback that took them to their 46-43 win over the Bulldogs.

Blake Connors, with 14 points, was the high point scorer for the Bulldogs. Adam Kester scored 13 points and Alfred Olvera scored 8 points.

Fall River coach Greg Hawkins praised the Burney team and player Ryan Huffman.

"Huffman had a great game against us and played very well. It was close at times and we had a decent lead, but we can't seem to beat Burney this year. We tip our hat to them."

Burney's JV boys beat Fall River, 82-72.

"At the beginning of the fourth quarter, Fall River was up by 10, we got within four points of them. They got a technical with four minutes left in the game and that was the beginning of the 10-point swing," said Burney JV coach Wade Jones.

Burney scored 31 points in the fourth quarter.

"We got into bad goal trouble and come fourth quarter we had trouble keeping off the foul line," said Fall River coach Scott Gallion.

Gallion said that Fall River was up by four when their point guard, Brent Handa, fouled out.

Ryan Rhodes was the high point scorer for Burney with 27 points. Grant Moody scored 26 points.

Kevin Sutherland scored 24 points that included five 3-pointers.

Brandon Oilar scored 21 points for the Bulldogs, followed by Shane Robertson with 19 and Colter Sisk with 15.

In the JV girls' game, Burney won 44-33.

"It was an amazing game," said coach Loni Estes.

At halftime, Fall River was ahead, 33-14.

"We played very good defense and had a ton of steals," Estes said.

Amber Spooner led her team with 14 points, 6 rebounds, and 5 steals. Taylor White scored 13 points, with 4 rebounds, 2 assists and 2 blocked shots. Anika Kierce scored 8 points with 8 assists. Megan Spooner scored 5 points with 7 rebounds and 3 steals.

Fall River's JV girls coach Todd Sloat said Burney "jumped out to an early lead and we never recovered. Burney played really well and forced us into a lot of turnovers. I've not seen them play that well all year."

Bulldog Maggie DeCoito was her team's high point scorer with 9 points.

Raider boys, girls lose to Mt. Shasta at Bear court

Two days after their shining victories over Fall River in basketball, the Raiders had lost their sparkle and the Mt. Shasta Bears took winning swipes at each of Burney's teams.

The Raider Girls Varsity lost 59-42.

"We only had a five-point deficit at half time and I was sure we could make that up easily," said Raider coach Susan Ayers.

But the Bears had improved since the Raiders last encounter with them.

"We weren't able to match up well in the second half. We played consistently as a team and did a good job of handling the ball. We just missed some key shots and Mt. Shasta was able to board well defensively and get the score each time at their basket," Ayers said.

Robbie Fulk scored 19 points and Kayla Stover scored 11 with 11 rebounds.

Burney's boys' varsity team lost to the Bears, 55-77. Ryan Huffman was the high point scorer with 20 points. Kyle Moody had 11 points and Luke Scheckla scored 9 points.

The JV Raider boys lost, 56-49.

"For whatever reason, we don't match up well with them. We hung in there 'til the end, but we were unable to stop them," said Burney JV coach Wade Jones.

Jones said if the team had made their free throws, they could have pulled off a win.

Ryan Rhodes scored 30 points in the game and Grant Moody scored 8 points.

The JV Raider girls lost their game to the Bears, 35-20. Megan Spooner was Burney's high point scorer with 12 points. Taylor White had 6 points.

Raider Paige Logan (32) steps past Weed defender in earlier varsity game this season.

Burney's Robbie Fulk (20) heads for the basket in game against Weed Jan. 30.

Bulldog Adam Kester (30) moves past Trinity's Austin Duncan (14) in Friday night game.

Fall River's Nick McFarlin (24) eyes the ball in Friday game won by the Wolves.

Trinity's Nate Goodyear is guarded by Bulldogs Blake Connors (20) and Adam Kester (30).

Bulldogs lose close, fast-paced contest

First-place Trinity wins in McArthur

BY MEG FOX

The Fall River Bulldogs sustained major bites from the Trinity Wolves, who arrived in McArthur for basketball Friday.

Only the Fall River's girls' varsity team was able to outwit their opponents and defeated Trinity 59-45.

Fall River's Varsity boys lost by only three points, 64-61, in what coach Greg Hawkins described as a "wild and crazy game" against the number one (8-0) team in the Shasta Cascade League.

"It was very exciting and fun for both teams and the kids played hard, but there's a reason they're in first place in the league," Hawkins said.

Blake Connors scored 27 points for Fall River, Adam Kester scored 13, Deiter Salters scored 9 and Nick McFarlin scored 6 points.

Against the girls' varsity team from Weaverville, Fall River "really played hard defensively," said coach Kathy Jones.

"We shot the ball 43 percent from the field and had 50 team rebounds, our season high. It was a good night for us."

It was also a good night for Bulldog Brittany Wagner, who started for Jessica Caldwell, and was the high point scorer with 20 points and 10 rebounds.

"She played well throughout the game," said Jones.

Caldwell was down with the flu, but went into the game in the fourth quarter. Brittany Shelton and Abby Salters each scored 10 points.

Shelton had 10 rebounds, 4 assists and 2 steals. Salters had 7 rebounds, 7 assists, and 3 steals. Shawna Truan scored 8 points and had 8 rebounds, 3 steals, and 1 assist.

JV boys coach Scott Gallion said their 66-55 loss was a tough game for the Bulldogs. "We were right there with them for most of the game, but when they went to the free-throw line they made their shots. We also had a four-minute streak where we had no score and that put us under."

Brandon Oilar was the high point scorer with 16 points. Brady Corr scored 12 and Alex Vigil scored 10 points.

Fall River's JV girls lost by three points with a final score of 28-25.

"It was a well-played game by both teams and the lead kept changing, but we had no buckets in the last minute to beat them and they made some scoring free throws at the last minute," said Fall River coach Todd Sloat.

Maggie DeCoito scored 8 points and Kelsey Sloat scored 7 points.

Saving the Memories and Messages...

Valentines From the Past

1. Handmade valentines: This one was embroidered, or sewn, onto a piece of material. Early valentines often had doves, hearts, flowers or Cupids.

2. Printed valentines: In the beginning of the 1800s, stationery stores sold little machine-made "scraps," or pieces of paper featuring roses, Cupids, flowers and beautiful women. People pasted them on paper or paper lace and added their own messages.

In the 1840s, before the Civil War, printed valentine cards and other cards assembled in small workshops became very popular. As more people moved to the cities, stationery stores sold valentines in great numbers.

Saving valentines
Is fun to do!

It's fun to get and send valentines. It's also fun to save them.

You might have started your own collection at home. Someday, your valentines might wind up in a museum or an archive. (An archive is a place to keep records and collections.)

To find out about valentines of the past, The Mini Page visited the Archives Center at the Smithsonian's Museum of American History.

The English brought the idea of exchanging valentines to this country more than 200 years ago, in the 1700s. Over the years, valentine cards have changed.

The Mini Page thanks John Fleckner, chief archivist; Faith Davis Ruffins, historian; and Allison Oswald, archivist, at the Archives Center of the Smithsonian National Museum of American History.

3. Vinegar valentines: Vinegar has an acid or unpleasant taste. Vinegar cards had an unpleasant but usually humorous message. This valentine encouraged a young man to stop being a bachelor and get married.

4. Kids' valentines: Valentines for kids became popular in the early 1900s. This one was probably popular in the 1930s.

Gus Goodsport's Report
Supersport: Kyle Maynard

Hometown: Suwanee, Georgia Weight: 103

Kyle Maynard is a happy, upbeat senior and successful wrestler at Collins Hill High School in Suwanee, Ga. As of Jan. 4, he had won 22 of 27 matches and ranked fourth in the state in the 103-pound weight class.

That's incredible — considering that Kyle has no hands. He was born with congenital amputation. His arms stretch to about elbow length. His legs extend to most people's kneecap. But Maynard always has had a "never quit" attitude. He's smart on the mat and has remarkable physical strength. But it's spiritual strength that makes Kyle go. "I have a very strong faith," he said. "Nothing is impossible with God."

Kyle also enjoys video games, makes good grades in school, and plans to go to college next year. As for wrestling, his goal is to win the 103-pound state championship. Nobody's saying he can't do it.

Valentine Cards of Today

To find out more about valentines, The Mini Page talked with the experts at Hallmark Cards. Hallmark is the largest greeting card maker in the world.

Kids' valentines

Kids often buy their valentines in collections that they pass out to their classmates. Many valentines that are meant to be sent to kids are based on well-known toys, TV shows, books and movies.

Writing valentines

Richard Bagley has been writing greeting cards for Hallmark Cards for 19 years. When talking with him, we found out that:

- His job is to help people by putting their emotions into words.
- Mr. Bagley works way ahead of when the cards will go on sale. In January, he was working on St. Patrick's cards that will be available in March of 2005. Greeting cards go through editors and many other steps before they go on sale.
- He always carries a 3-by-5-inch note card in case he gets an idea away from the office.
- Sometimes he gets an idea in seconds; other times an idea might take days.
- He writes cards from different viewpoints. For example, he may write a card for a daughter to her mother and another from a mother to her daughter.

Valentine fact-a-roonies

- Valentine's Day is the second-largest day for giving greeting cards. (Christmas is the largest.)
- This year, more than 200 million cards will be exchanged. This number does not include the packages of valentines used for exchanging in the classroom.
- Today, there are many different kinds of valentines designed to be sent to special people, such as friends, brothers, sisters and grandparents. However, more than half, or 55 percent, are romantic valentines for women.
- While you can't keep all of the valentines you get, you might want to keep:
 - the ones that mean the most.
 - the ones that tell us something of the times we live in. This might include cards featuring fads, TV shows and movies.

This Barbie™ card was designed for grandparents to send to their granddaughters.

This Tigger card was designed for parents to send to their sons. It is based on a character from the "Winnie the Pooh" book and cartoons.

The Mini Page thanks Hallmark Cards for help with this story.
